CHICAGO SCORED IN THE FIRST

CUBS AND TIGERS BATTLE

DETAILS OF DETROIT-CHICAGO GAME.

FIRST—Sheckard flied to Schaefer, who made a pretty catch back of second. Evers jumped a fly into short centre that fell safe. Donovan seemed to have neither speed nor curve. Schulte singled past Coughlin. Chance singled to centre and Evers scored. Willetts sent out to warm up. Steinfeldt flied out to Crawford. Hofman hit to Coughlin, who got Shulte on the line. ONE RUN.

McIntyre walked. O'Leary tried to sacrifice, but ended by striking out. Crawford singled to centre, Hofman somersaulting in vain in an effort to get the ball. McIntyre advanced to second. The mighty Cobb bunted two fouls and then struck out. Rossman's third strike was a wild pitch, giving him first, McIntyre taking third and Crawford second, but Schaefer struck out. NO RUNS.

WOMEN IN DEFENCE OF SUN WORSHIP

A complete denial of all the charges concerning Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw's actions subsequent to her adoption of the wierd Mazdaznan cult and an attack upon the personal veracity of Mrs. Mabelle Dutton, who is bringing the suit to have a conservator appointed to prevent the Shaw estate from falling into the hands of the Sun Worshippers, comprised the defence offered to-day in the East Cambridge court.

Relatives were arrayed to declare that Mrs. Shaw's physical condition has improved since she became a Sun Worshipper and undergone Hanish's treatment. They declared her actions have been sane in every way.

The District Attorney's office of Middlesex County has begun a rigid inquiry into [illegible] Mazdaznan Society it appeared at the [illegible] to-day.

The sensational revelations made in the hearing of the petition for a conservator for the estate of Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw of Lowell, a disciple of the cult, has convinced District Attorney John J. Higgins that the facts warrant a searching investigation into the organization.

State Detective Charles E. Byrnes was in the Probate Court room in the East Cambridge Court House to-day, when the hearing before Judge Charles H. McIntire was resumed.

While he would not talk of the purpose of his attendance in the court room, it is known that he is there by order of the District Attorney for the purpose of getting evidence against the Mazdaznans.

Want Priestess Barred.

Attorneys Robert A. Jordan and W. T. Kittredge, for Mrs. Mabelle M. Dutton of Dorchester, who demands a conservator for the estate of her aunt, Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw, are considering the question of demanding the removal of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Ruth Hilton of Lowell from the courtroom when Mrs. Shaw is called to the stand.

Mrs. Hilton was accused by Mrs. Elsie Stein Dittman yesterday with trying to hypnotize her as she was revealing all of the practices and inner workings of the Sun Worshippers.

The attorneys have a precedent for the demand that a person gifted as a hypnotic worker be compelled to leave the courtroom when a possible subject is testifying.

The sensation of the Mazdaznan trial is the statement of Mrs. Elsie Dittman, charging Mrs. Hilton tried to hypnotize her on the witness stand, as she was making her revelations, stripping the Mazdaznan cult of its mask and telling what it really is to Hanish, "the Little Father," and how he has made a fortune out of it in less than ten years.

Hypnotic Left Eye.

"She has kept her left eye continually on my left eye to influence my mind," said Mrs. Dittmann, pointing to Mrs. Hilton, the priestess of the Sun Temple in Lowell.

Attorneys Charles J. McIntire and Wil-

The attorneys of Mr. Shaw are endeavoring to show through her that she is not of unsound mind as is charged and that she is able to take care of the large estate left by her husband.

Although Mrs. Shaw is over sixty years of age she does not look more than 45. She is a stately woman with white hair. As much of the testimony in the suit has been directed toward Mrs. Ruth Hilton of Lowell, high-priestess of the Mazdaznans, she also will take the stand and explain her connection with the cult and her relations with Mrs. Shaw.

MRS. SHAW GAVE MONEY TO CULT

W. H. Drew of Boston, formerly of Lowell, was the first witness summoned to take the stand to-day. Mr. Drew testified yesterday that he had known Mrs. Shaw for twenty years.

He was questioned to-day by Attorney Robert A. Jordan, for the plaintiff.

Q.—Did you notice anything else besides what you testified to yesterday that was peculiar about Mrs. Shaw? A.—Yes, several times when I dropped in to visit Mrs. Shaw at her home she was going about the house with nothing on but a union suit. About three years ago I saw her go to the door with nothing on but the union suit of underwear and take mail from the letter carrier.

This testimony ended the plaintiff's case. Eleven witnesses for the defense, including Mrs. Ruth Hilton, high priestess of the Mazdaznan cult, were then sworn. Five of the witnesses were women. Mrs. Shaw was not sworn in at this time because she had been previously sworn at the hearing in Lowell a week ago. An interested spectator of this proceeding was Dr. Hilton, husband of Mrs. Hilton, who appeared at the trial for the first time to-day.

Although it was previously announced tha Mrs. Shaw was to be the first witness, her attorneys in conference to-day decided to preface her testimony with that of several witnesses from New Hampshire.

Brother on Stand.

The first witness for the defense was A. Emerson Maxfield, a brother of Mrs. Shaw, living at Goshen, N. H. He is sixty-two years old and was questioned by Attorney William H. Wilson.

Q.—During the last year, have you had occasion to visit your sister Mrs. Shaw? A.—I have and she has been to see me also at my home in New Hampshire. She has a home in Mill Village, N. H., which is a part of the same town I live in. Her home there is worth about $1,500.

Q.—Since her husband's death has Mrs. Shaw consulted you in regard to business and money matters? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know how much money she has given to the Mazdaznans? A.—Yes.

Q.—During all these years that she has been connected with the Mazdaznans have you noticed any change in her? A.—Only for the better; her general health has improved since she joined the cult. Some time before her husband's death in 1906 she began to do her own housework, although she had previously employed a servant.

Q.—Did she ever consult you about selling her home in Lowell? A.—Yes. Just after her husband's funeral she told me she wanted to sell her home, as she wanted to get it off her hands. I advised her to sell it.

Q.—What was the condition of your mother in 1871 and 1872? A.—She was kept in a room by herself.

Q.—Was she locked in? A.—Yes, she had to be locked in a cage.

Q.—Did she ever recover from this state? A.—She did not.

Q.—When did she die? A.—She died in 1881, the same day that Mrs. Dutton's mother was buried.

Q.—Between 1852 and 1871 what was the condition of your mother? A.—She was all right.

Q.—When has Mrs. Shaw assisted different members of her family? (Objected to by Attorney McIntyre and excluded by the court.)

Q.—Have you see any altar when you have been in Mrs. Shaw's house. A.—No.

Q.—Have you heard her say anything about having dreams, revelation, or talks with her son, Maxfield, or her husband since their deaths? A.—No.

Q.—Did you notice any difference in Mr. Shaw's room after his death? A.—I think it was about the same.

J.—Was the bed made? A.—Yes.

Q.—When did you last see Mabelle Dutton? A.—I last saw her this morning.

Q.—Has she been up to see you at your home, and if so what did she say? A.—She asked me if I did not want to help her out in this affair, and I told her Mrs. Shaw could take better care of herself than she could. Then my wife asked her to leave the house.

Q.—Do you know her (Mrs. Dutton) reputation for truth and veracity? A.—Bad.

At this point Mrs. Shaw, who had been seated in the rear of the court room, rushed to her attorney's table and held a hurried conference with Attorney Wilson.

Gave $300 to Cult.

Mr. Maxfield was then cross-examined by Attorney Kitteridge. Witness admitted that he had seen Mrs. Dutton several times since the death of Mr. Shaw and that they had exchanged visits several times. Continuing the cross-examination, he was asked:

Q.—Did Mrs. Shaw speak to you about the bills of the Mazdaznans at any time when she saw you. A.—Not that I remember.

Q.—Did she tell you how much she had given to the Temple? A.—I think she told me the sum was $300.

Q.—If she had told you that she had

GAME TO-DAY.

Chicago at Detroit.

Result of To-day's Game May Decide World's Championship Series.

BENNETT PARK, Detroit, Oct. 14.—Showing the same fighting spirit that won them the American League pennant, the Detroit Tigers took the field against the Chicago Cubs in the fifth, and what might be the final game of the world's championship series.

The Detroit players were far more hopeful than the Detroit fans, who have always shown an inclination to quit whenever the home team is not sailing along in the lead. This was indicated by the size of to-day's crowd, which was not as great as that of yesterday.

Jennings, with his voice torn to ribbons, was busy from early morning huskily encouraging his players. Knowing the uncertainties of baseball, the veteran will not give up the ship until the last man is out in the deciding game.

"I've seen sicker calves get well," he declared to all whom it might concern. "We are not out of it yet."

"We'll Win," Declares Chance.

"We'll win it right here if we can, and we're taking no chances," said Manager Frank Chance of the Chicago Cubs as he led his men on the field from their carriages. The Cubs needed but the one more victory to once more firmly affix the flag which they havee carried for the past year. To usurp the honor the Tigers will have to take three in a row.

The Detroit view of the situation was rendered hopeful only by the prospect that in case the Tigers should succeed in taking to-day's game, they would place Manager Chance in a serious position as regards his pitching staff. Brown toiled yesterday and would not be available under ordinary circumstances to-morrow. Pfeister has been exploded. Overall and Reulbach warmed up for to-day's game, but the latter was suffering with a severe cold and was said before the practice to have a sore arm.

Jennings tried out Wild Bill Donovan, who looked none too good as Catcher Schmidt looked him over. Bill is still tired as the result of the terrific game he pitched on Sunday, and has never been noted for any iron tendencies, being always used very carefully. Mullin was to have been held in reserve for to-morrow. Beyond this Jennings had no plans. He paraded three of his twirlers to-day on the practice firing line. Of the lot Mullin showed the best, according to the experts who watched the preliminary workouts.

Tigers and Cubs Have a Meeting.

Bfore the opening of to-day's game the Tigers and Cubs held a brief indignation meeting at which it was mutually agreed that no world's series would include either team as a contender in the future in which the players were not accorded representation at the gate and in the process of counting up.

The Tiger crowd were desperate to-day. The players have no further interest in the gate receipts but they are fighting hard to win the greatest baseball honor and their three defeats to one victory have filled the men with a personal animus against the conquering Chicagoans. They were out to win to-day for the pure joy of walloping the National League champions.

Yesterday's crowd came near establishing a record for baseball attendance in Detroit, and the indications an hour or so before the game to-day were that the outpouring of fans would not reach more than two-thirds of the figures of yesterday.

The fans here were gloomy. Even with Donovan in the box they think they foresaw a Detroit defeat, for they believe that the pet is not at his best.

THREE DEAD IN MINE FIRE; 100 ARE RESCUED

KOENIGSHUETTE, Prussia, Oct. 14.—Fire broke out this morning in one of the galleries of the Koeningshrube colliery, in which over a hundred men were at work. Relief parties were quickly organized. Three miners lost their lives. Several were unconscious from coal gas.

The mine is 350 feet deep, and it is feared that all have perished. Great crowds surround the mouth of the mine.

REFUSED DRINK, DIES BY POISON

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 14.—Refused intoxicating drinks by the saloonkeepers, Frank M. Reese, a patent attorney living at Sharon Hill, is dead as the result of drinking wood alcohol, which he took as a substitute for whiskey. Reese was one of the sons of Jacob Reese, who was closely identified with Andrew Carnegie in the steel industry, and whose inventions had much to do with enabling Mr. Carnegie to build up his great fortune.

MATHEWSON MAY QUIT GAME FOR INSURANCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Peerless Christy Mathewson, the Giants' mainstay, and one of the greatest pitchers the national game has ever known, will, in all probability, never be seen in the uniform of the New York Club again. This declaration was made to-day by Mathewson himself to an AMERICAN reporter in the office of the James Perry Insurance agency, where the great twirler has accepted a position as a representative of the company.

"Baseball shall probably see me no more; that is, as a professional," said the peerless Matty, "for the inducements offered me in the insurance business are so great that I would either have to sacrifice a business career or baseball life, and I should choose the former.

"It may mean a great deal to the New York Club and to probably thousands of fans throughout the city, but I have been in the game eight years now as a professional player and will probably be forced to quit the game before the termination of two years more. For that reason I have been looking around for something to do when my time as a player comes round. opportunities and I have accepted this position, not as a matter of necessity, but in order to be prepared for a business career when I found my usefulness as a ball player is at an end."

WILLS HUSBAND $1 IN 4 INSTALLMENTS

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—One dollar, payable in monthly instalments of twenty-five cents, is the bequest given Andrew Heckler by his wife, Catherine E. Heckler of Portland, Ore., whose will has been filed in the Probate Court. In the will Heckler is referred to as "the individual who married me in 1905 in San Diego, Cal., and who got from me thousands of dollars and when he could get no more deserted me."

SHOOTS SONS, SELF AT SCHOOLHOUSE

GOLDSBERRY, Mo., Oct. 14.—D. O. Seaman, a farmer, went to the district school, called out his two sons, aged ten and twelve, shot one of them dead, mortally wounded the other and then shot and killed himself. The cause of the shooting is not known.

RECOVERS $400 FOR HER "JIM CROW" RIDE

SUFFOLK, Va., Oct. 14.—Mrs. Rosa Stone has recovered a $400 verdict against the Norfolk & Western Railroad for being compelled to ride seven miles in a "Jim Crow" car with negroes. The jury allowed her $4 for each minute of riding.

RIOT FOLLOWS BOMB IN TAXICAB STRIKE

POLICE RESERVES QUICKLY QUELL DISTURBANCE AFTER NEW YORK EXPLOSION.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Hurled into the inclosure where 250 taxicabs belonging to the New York Taxicab Company were stored in the lot from Fifty-sixth to Fifty-seventh streets, on Eighth avenue, a dynamite bomb exploded early to-day with terrific force. Hundreds were roused from their beds, and the entire neighborhood was thrown into excitement. The explosion was heard for many blocks.

Police reserves from the West Forty-seventh street station were hurried to the scene. The Victoria Hotel was attacked by a crowd, and a stone was hurled through the dining room window. A fight and a long chase followed.

Officials of the company describe the bomb hurling as an attempt to destroy the vehicles of the company, but the strikers and their sympathizers insist that the explosive was thrown either to create the impression that the strikers are resorting to desperate means to win their cause or that a person in a misguided effort to aid the strikers' cause was responsible.

In Flight for Safety.

The explosion, though doing small damage to the taxicabs stored in the big lot, tore a great hole in the ground and shook many buildings in the neighborhood. The West Side branch of the Young Men's Christian Association Building adjoins the lot which formerly was the field used by the Manhattan Athletic Club.

In the Y. M. C. A. building 600 persons were asleep when the bomb exploded. They leaped from their beds and scrambled about in fright when the force of the explosion shook the structure. Hundreds of others in the neighborhood were aroused.

The bomb was hurled over the twenty-foot fence which surrounds the field. It landed twenty feet inside the enclosure on the Fifty-seventh street side, but away from the big tent in which the taxicabs were stored. Seventeen special policemen employed to ride with the strikebreakers were on the other side of the tent, and though they felt the force of the explosion none of them was injured.

Wild excitement followed the report. The strike-breakers hurried to the Fifty-seventh street side of the enclosure, and their shouts roused persons in the neighborhood. Within a few minutes a great crowd gathered and attempted to force its way through the gates of the enclosure.

They were not allowed to enter, and reports spread that many had been killed.

Deny Bomb Thrown.

Taxicab drivers among the strikers did not hesitate to express the belief that the blow-up had been due to the inexperience of some of the strike-breakers in handling gasoline and not a bomb, as the taxicab authorities insisted.

It was pointed out that the gasoline would not have torn a hole in the ground and that the tent would have been set afire by the blaze which would follow a gasoline explosion.

REPUBLICANS NAME POTHIER ON R. I. TICKET

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 14.—Aram J. Pothier of Woonsocket was nominated for Governor of Rhode Island at the Republican State convention here to-day. The nominee for Lieutenant-Governor is Arthur W. Dennis of Providence, formerly Speaker of the House. The ticket was named by acclamation. All the others on it were renominated without opposition.

General Brayton attended the convention and was the centre of a crowd before it was called to order.

Mr. Pothier is a business man and banker and served as Lieutenant-Governor under Governor Dyer. Mr. Dennis is a manufacturer.

In the Second District convention, Congressman Adin B. Capron was renominated. The candidate for Congress named by the First District delegates is William H. Sheffield of Newport.

PIRATES' NEW GROUNDS.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 14.—Through the [illegible]rchase of the new ball park in Pittsburg [illegible] cost of $800,000, the Pittsburg Na[illegible] League Baseball Club has effectually barred the doors of the city to the American Association, which for more than a year past has been flirting with Pittsburg.

Lord Bacon Said "Digest"

This is the Secret of Life in Business Or in Health.

It is claimed that Lord Bacon struck the prime keynote of life when he wrote: "Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested."

He wrote of books; many who have followed him have written likewise of life. The man who digests his business, makes success; the actor or actress who digests his or her art brings fame; the man who lives life and digests it as he should lives as was the intention he should live.

It is not the food you swallow or taste that brings happiness to you; it is the food you digest.

If you swallow and taste and don't digest and chew, Nature cannot give you health, for you do not furnish the ammunition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain in pure, concentrated form the essences which, when they reach the stomach, turn dyspeptic conditions into those of healthy digestion.

These little tablets are dissolved in the mouth by saliva; they mix with this fluid and are passed down into the stomach, where they immediately set to work upon the food and digest it. They are many times more powerful than the human digestive fluids, and thus replenish Nature with those juices which sickness, abuse or wrongful eating have exhausted.

The world's best chemists in Europe and America agree on the ingredients best adapted to perfect digestion. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are these ingredients presented to the stomach in the most pleasant and lasting form.

Powders and liquids soon lose their effectiveness through chemical actions and decay. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are made under terrific pressure, and their qualities are thus made lasting.

Forty thousand physicians prescribe and use these tablets, and every druggist sells them. Price 50 cents. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

B. P. CHENEY BUYS HOTEL FOR $2,400,000

The Hotel Gotham at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, New York, was purchased at auction yesterday by B. P. Cheney of Boston. The price paid was $2,400,000.

It is reported that Mr. Cheney bought the property for a corporation for which the Knickerbocker Trust Company was the underwriter, but at Mr. Cheney's office in the Ames Building to-day, no information could be given as to the intention of the Boston capitalist with the property. Mr. Cheney himself is out of town.

The Hotel Gotham, twenty-one stories in height and directly opposite the St. Regis, cost originally $3,000,000. It is the only hostelry in New York without a bar. Its vicissitudes have been many. The company which originally erected the hotel is said to include J. P. Morgan, the widow of the late Senator Hanna, Cornelius Bliss and other well known and wealthy people.

War against the hotel was immediately started by the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church on the ground that a hotel within 200 feet of a church cannot have a bar. Senator Platt and Senator Chauncey Depew were reported to have put their shoulders to the wheel in vain attempts to have a bill passed in the Legislature allowing the hotel to maintain a bar. Two bills were defeated.

M'CARTHY PAID MY BILLS, SAYS MRS. GODFREY

Mrs. Beatrice Brunner Godfrey, the "child wife" of Arthur N. Godfrey, son of Lester N. Godfrey, the "lumber king," admitted in court to-day that John H. McCarthy, the wealthy Boston market man, had paid her hotel bills in Boston, New York and London, bought her steamer ticket across the water, and had taken her frequently on auto rides and theatre and dinner parties.

Mrs. Godfrey is seeking alimony in the equity session of the Suffolk Superior Court, pending hearings on the cross libels for divorce between herself and her young husband.

McCarthy is one of the men named by Godfrey in his divorce libel. Richard Carle, the actor-comedian, is the other. To-day is the second day of the alimony hearing, with Judge Richardson on the bench.

Mrs. Godfrey under examination by Attorney Henry F. Hurlburt, counsel for Godfrey:

Q.—Did Mr. McCarthy ever lend you any money? A.—He gave me $50 at the Cumberland Hotel in New York. That was the first time.

Q.—Did Mr. McCarthy meet you there? A.—Yes. During my five weeks' stay in New York Mr. McCarthy frequenly took me on auto rides, to the theatre and to dinner.

Q.—Did you borrow any money from him? A.—Yes, on my return to Boston, at the Hotel Victoria. I borrowed money from him. I cannot tell the exact amount.

Mrs. Godfrey added that she asked McCarthy for $100 to pay her New York hotel bill and that he paid the bill by check.

Q.—Who paid for your passage across the water? A.—Mr. McCarthy paid $300 for tickets for myself and a woman friend with me.

Lester N. Godfrey, father-in-law of Mrs. Godfrey, ended his testimony to-day with the statement that his son had overdrawn his personal account with the firm $2,692.

Boston American Contest Editor Gives Teachers and Their Friends Some Advice.

GET SUBSCRIPTION ORDERS

TIPS TO TEACHERS

The way to get to the top in this contest is to get your friends to subscribe for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Get all your friends to give you $1.50 each for thirty Sunday papers. The paper will be delivered to them weekly for thirty weeks. For every paid-in-advance subscription of $1.50 you will be given 1,000 extra votes.

That's the easiest way to do it.

Or——

If you cannot get $1.50 from every friend, take less. For fifty cents you can order ten SUNDAY AMERICANS and get 140 votes. Write to the European Tour Editor and ask all about it.

Votes are pouring in by thousands in the BOSTON AMERICAN Free European Tour contest to determine the thirty-six most popular Sunday school teachers in Boston and suburbs.

Also paid-in-advance subscriptions are coming in fast, and there will be a dozen or more beautiful surprises when the list is published again next Sunday.

Subscriptions are the things that count.

No candidate in the contest should be satisfied just because dozens of friends are out gathering votes. The thing to do is to make your friends get subscription orders for the SUNDAY AMERICAN. That's how you can pile your vote up rapidly—so rapidly that you won't realize it until you have passed the 10,000 mark.

Combine your ballot gathering bee with a subscription gathering bee. Then you'll be doing something to win. Keep everlastingly at it. Don't be discouraged because some other teacher happens to be ahead of you.

Let the other teacher's lead be an incentive to make you work all the harder.

Begin to-day.

SCHOOL DAY AT N. E. FOOD FAIR

This is Winthrop School Day at the New England Food Fair in the Mechanics building. Pupils and teachers from the neighboring town were early at the entertainment in Mechanics building to see Bostock's trained wild animals, the splendid Mexican exhibit, the wonderful assortment of food stuffs, the Philippoteaux paintings and to hear the Mexican National Band.

The children were all on hand in time to see the wild animals get their one meal of the day. Every morning at 10:30 o'clock the keepers make the rounds of the cages and fling to the snarling, howling animals great joints of raw meat. Feeding time at the Bostock Trained Wild Animal Arena is one of the greatest shows of the day in Mechanics Building now.

Two new series of moving pictures have been added to the exhibition in Revere Hall. One shows a Harvard-Yale boat race at New Haven, while the other is a set of comic views which never fail to please the large audiences which view this attraction.

Friday is to be the "Fat Folks' Festival." On Friday every person weighing over 225 pounds is to be admitted free. The heaviest visitor of the day is to be presented with a season ticket.

HELD FOR TAMPERING WITH ROAD SIGNALS

Charged with tampering with railroad signals at the North Cambridge station of the Boston & Maine Railroad, Napoleon Oinnette, forty-five years old, a farmhand, was arraigned to-day before Judge Almy in the Cambridge District Court. He pleaded not guilty, and was held in $1,000 for a hearing to-morrow.

HISGEN IN SEATTLE STIRS ENTHUSIASM

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 14.—The Independence party with Thomas L. Hisgen, its first presidential nominee as the principal speaker, opened its campaign in western Washington in a monster meeting in Dreamland Rink, one of Seattle's largest auditoriums.

In point of attendance and enthusiasm the meeting compared favorably with those of George Fred Williams and United States Senator Gore, spell-binding for the Democrats and United States Senator Beveridge for the Republicans.

In seathing terms Mr. Hisgen dealt with the Standard Oil crowd, their methods, political and business. Mr. Hisgen was well received and his caustic criticism of Mr. Bryan in his surrender to men like Alton B. Parker and corrupting corporations elicited the greatest applause. Mr. Hisgen also said:

"The enthusiasm that has been shown at this meeting has been characteristic of all meetings which we have held since the beginning of the campaign. I do not believe that in any other campaign started by a new party have there been such meetings and such intense interest shown in the subject under discussion.

"There is no doubt in my mind, from what I have seen in my tour from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, but that the people of this country are anxious for a change in the affairs of our government.

"As to just how this change is to be brought about is the one that is seriously under consideration. I have said before that the Republican party would not change if it could. The great party of Lincoln is responsible for conditions as they exist to-day.

The father of the giant corporations which have grown u with the help of government assistance can change conditions, but will not.

"The Democratic party is so divided it cannot accomplish anything."

BALLOON DROPS INTO NORTH SEA

CUXHAVEN, Ger., Oct. 14.—The Spanish balloon Castilla, one of the missing contestants in the race for the international cup that was started from Berlin Sunday, dropped into the ocean, six miles north of Heligoland, this morning.

A fishing boat in the vicinity sent out a small boat to the rescue. Montogo, the pilot, and his assistant, Robert, were picked up and taken back to the fisherman. Later in the day they were landed here.

Two other balloons are still missing.

CHINESE EDITOR COMING TO HUB

Li Sum Ling, editor of the Hong Kong Chinese Mail, arrives in Boston to-night at 8:30 to inspect the institutions of this city. He is especially interested in educational institutions and has expressed a desire to study the methods at Harvard University. He is an accomplished traveler, and goes systematically about seeing the various cities he visits.

Within the next few days he will doubtless be a prominent figure about Boston, as he wears his native robes.

During his stay in Boston he will be quartered at the Hotel Touraine.

FELL IN SEWER PIT; IS KILLED

Martin Donnellon, an employe of the Hugh Nawn Construction Company, was instantly killed by a fifty-eight-foot fall to the bottom of a sewer excavation in Brighton.

Donnellon was working at the corner of Washington and Foster streets, Brighton, on the roadway bordering the sewer excavation. He made a misstep over the edge. He was thirty-two years old and lived at No. 468 Seventh street, South Boston.

JAMAICA PLAIN RALLY TO-NIGHT FOR LEAGUERS

Tomfohrde Hall on Boylston street, near Boylston Station, Jamaica Plain, will be the meeting place to-night of those interested in the cause of the Independence League in Ward 22.

Speakers who know the facts will tell just how the big public service corporations control politics and legislation. Incidentally it is expected that one of the league candidates will deal with the activity of the Boston Elevated in senatorial contests.

It is said to be a fact that for some particular reason an unusually large lobby is to be detailed to the State House next year, and that candidates for the Senate are being backed to the limit by the Boston Elevated Railroad.

Edwin M. White, candidate for Congress in the Eleventh district, of which Ward 22 is a part; William P. Sawyer, candidate for Senator in the Seventh district, of which Ward 20 is a part; Emil J. Breightenbach and Alexander Cohen, candidates for the House from Ward 22, and Arthur W. Clark of Ward 18 and James P. Hayes of Charlestown will be the speakers.

Friday night in Draper's Hall, Adams street, Dorchester, Cornelius J. Desmond of Ward 24, the well known reformer and champion of improvement societies, will make a red-hot speech on local conditions.

Charles J. Kidney, who is a candidate for Congress in the Tenth District of which Dorchester is a part, will advocate the principles of the Independence league.

The other speakers will be James C. Christian, candidate for the Senate; Samuel P. Whitcomb, candidate for the House; John M. Pease and Mr. Clark.

18,000 GALLONS GASOLENE LOST

PITTSFIELD, Oct. 14.—A huge tank containing 18,000 gallons of gasolene fell from the five five-foot posts supporting it at the plant of the Four Brothers Oil Company, all the gasolene escaping.

Manager Linnehan said that he thought the accident was due to water undermining the concrete upon which the posts holding the tanks were set.

EDNA HOPPER TELLS OF ENGAGEMENT TO BROWN

REFUSES TO RETURN AUTO AND $25,000 INSURANCE POLICY TO RECEIVER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Miss Edna Wallace Hopper, the comic opera star, petite, petulant, pouty and pretty, became engaged to marry A. O. Brown, the broker who failed, on the second of last March. Anyway, she says she did. And he gave her an automobile on the very day she coyly whispered the "yes" that made him happy. And on that same day he felt so good that he also gave her an insurance policy on his life for $25,000. She didn't actually come into physical possession of the insurance policy on that fateful day, but she got hold of it later and turned it over to her attorneys, just as, she declares, Mr. Brown had instructed her to do. And then, a few days after the failure of A. O. Brown & Co., the policy was changed, and she was made the beneficiary. Mr. Brown's wife, who died some time ago, had been named as the beneficiary under the original policy, and Mr. Brown, when he gave it to Edna Wallace Hopper, instructed her to see that it was changed—to have her lawyer attend to the matter. But Miss Hopper just put it away in her vault and forgot it. She says so, and how can anybody doubt her word?

Answers Horrid Questions.

With fine shrugs of her shoulders and occasional gestures that indicated peevishness, Miss Hopper answered the horrid questions of Daniel P. Hayes, counsel for Receiver Charles Littlefield of the defunct brokerage concern. Miss Hopper did not like it much—that was manifest. She entered the Federal building accompanied by A. O. Brown. She wore a handsome hipless wine-colored corduroy suit, with lace collar and a wide-spreading black hat topped by a very jungle of feathers.

Miss Hopper said, in response to interrogatories, that she had known A. O. Brown for two years and that he had given her the automobile on March 2 last. She described the car and said that it was merely a gift and that there was no consideration whatever. Mr. Brown, she said, was in her apartment in West Thirty-third street when the gift was made.

Then the questioner tried to get Miss Hopper to tell more about the insurance policy. He wanted to know what conversation had taken place when Brown presented it to her and why he had given it to her. This made Miss Hopper angry. She was annoyed. She raised her voice a bit, leaned forward, looked the attorney, Mr. Hayes square in the eyes and then snapped out: "Now I cannot remember just what was said. How could I? A great deal was said—a great deal about the car and about the insurance policy. But I cannot remember it in detail. Of course I can't. It—the policy—was given to me. So was the car. So was the engagement ring."

"The receiver demands," said Mr. Hays, "that you turn over to him the Bianchi automobile, and he also demands that policy of insurance made out in your name and issued on the life of A. O. Brown."

Miss Hopper pouted and shook her head in refusal and Mr. Lauterbach, counsel for Mr. Brown, began to question her.

"Was there an engagement of marriage between you and Mr. Brown?"

"Yes," replied Miss Hopper, nodding her head vigorously. "It began on the day the car was presented to me."

The answer was given amid a torrent of objections by the attorneys for the receiver.

"And there was an engagement ring, which you still have?"

"Yes, I still have it," replied the actress, looking at her gloved hand.

"You are still engaged?"

"We are."

"Now, Miss Hopper, you have said that there was no consideration in return for these gifts?"

"Yes."

"You repeat that?"

"Well, there was no consideration other than my engagement to marry Mr. Brown."

"That is sufficient under the Federal statutes," said Mr. Lauterbach. And then, turning to Mr. Hays, he said: "Do you make a demand for the ring? If you do, we refuse to accede to the demands of the receiver."

"Yes, certainly we will refuse," said Miss Hopper firmly. "You don't get the ring."

"We don't want it," Mr. Hays said tersely.

"I ask to be invited to the wedding," said Mr. Lauterbach.

"You will be," declared Miss Hopper.

On her way out the actress stopped to speak to A. O. Brown, and although she stood on tiptoe, the big man had to bend almost double so that she could whisper in his ear.

"When's the event to take place?" was a note sent to Mr. Brown after Miss Hopper's departure.

"It's up to Miss Hopper to name the date, and she hasn't done so yet," was the reply.

FOUND BUT ONE CURE FOR ECZEMA

Many Different Remedies and Even Hospital Failed—Suffered 3 Years with Severe Itching, Scurfy Skin—Could Hardly Stop Scratching.

THANKFUL FOR PERFECT RESULTS OF CUTICURA

"About three years ago I was troubled by a severe itching and dry, scurfy skin on my ankles and feet. I could hardly keep from scratching. In a few days large red patches appeared and after that pimples formed. I went to the hospital, and the doctors pronounced it a very bad case of eczema. I went to the hospital two months and obtained a very little relief, so I tried many different remedies for at least ten months, but none seemed to cure me. They would relieve me for a week or two, then my skin would be full of pimples, the same as ever. Lately I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies, and I am very thankful I did, for, after using the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, I was completely cured. I hope that any one suffering as I did will try the Cuticura Remedies. Miss Teckla Pech 1422 Fifth St., Highlandtown, Md., Jan. 14, 1908."

BOY-SLAYER KING SENT TO LYMAN SCHOOL

"High Class Imbecile," Says Alienist, and Likely to Commit Other Serious Offences.

BOY SHOWS INDIFFERENCE

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 14.—Following a report by Dr. H. Walton Wood of Fairhaven, formerly the alienist at the Taunton Insane Asylum, that Nelson R. King, the nine-year-old boy who pushed his little friend, John Ernest Sousa, into the Acushnet river to see if he could swim, is apt to commit other serious crimes if left at large, Judge Frank A. Milliken of the Third District Court to-day ordered the boy sent to the Lyman School at Westboro. Serious at one moment and laughing the next, this boy, the youngest criminal in the State, took the sentence with apparent indifference.

It developed before the hearing that the boy yesterday was found by his jailers at the House of Correction to have torn all his clothing to shreds. He was found almost nude in his cell. To-day, when questioned by an AMERICAN reporter as to why he tore up his clothing, he said: "Oh, nothing."

Affection for Sister.

In court, when the boy's case was called, were his parents, his grandparents, his aunt, Mrs. Hattie Langley, Mrs. Adeline Simons, with whom he once stayed for several weeks, and his ten-year-old sister May.

To the little girl, the boy prisoner gave most of his attention. He appeared to think a great deal of her, and during a recess, when his parents were in conference with officers, refused to remain in the courtroom unless little May remained with him.

The boy wore a white jacket, dark colored breeches, and made a neat appearance, his clothing being new. At the opening of the hearing George Frederick Davis, agent of the State Board of Charities, suggested sending the lad to the Lyman School, where he could be watched.

Works on Impulse.

Dr. Wood then submitted his report, which said in part: "The King boy is a high-class imbecile. His mind will deteriorate. He has a mind that works on impulses, and it has no sequence of thought and no morality. If left in the community he will commit some other serious offence and eventually land in the insane asylum. He is not insane to-day, because an insane person must have had a normal mind, and this boy never had a normal mind."

The young prisoner's mother wept during the entire proceeding.

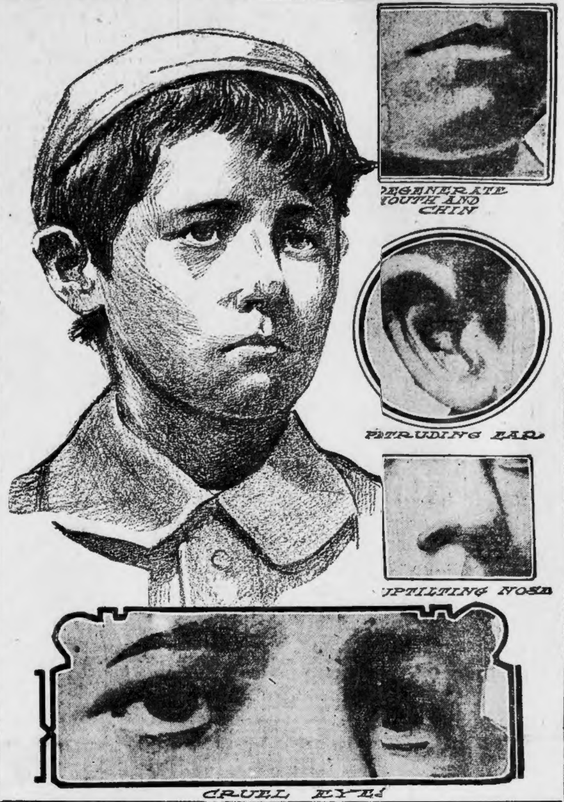
LONDON IMPORTERS WILL OPEN STORE

Every housekeeper and every prospective housekeeper in Greater Boston is invited to attend the opening of the new store of the London Importers, Inc., at No. 136 Hanover street, corner Union, to-morrow. The doors will be opened at 9 o'clock in the morning, and the firm declares that the new store is to be "the home of satisfaction." The London Importers declare that they sell direct from producer to consumer, and that the middleman's profit is saved to the customer. On opening day a valuable souvenir is to be given to each purchaser. Just to make every visitor, whether purchaser or otherwise, feel perfectly welcome and at home, a cup of coffee is to be offered every one.

SHOT TWO SONS AND KILLED HIMSELF

GOLDBERRY, Mo., Oct. 14.—D. O. Seaman, a farmer, went to the district school to-day, called out his two sons, aged ten and twelve years, shot one of them dead, mortally wounded the other, and then killed himself. The cause of the tragedy is not known.

FEATURES OF NELSON KING, BOY FIEND REMARKABLE STUDY IN JUVENILE CRIME



NELSON KING'S PHYSDGNOMY.

HEAD—Abnormally small. Wore a No. 6 hat, which was too big.

HAIR—Wild and coarse, no uniformity of direction. A characteristic in wild animal-like natures.

FOREHEAD—Low and receding. Usually (though not always) an indication of small brain capacity.

EYES—Small, gray in color, with pupils excessively sensitive. Found in certain morbid types.

NOSE—Almost rudimentary, or what is vulgarly called a "snub" and is commonly seen in juvenile asylums.

CHIN—Recedes with a marked angle, and is found in more than half of the criminals in corrective and penal institutions.

BODY—Undersized and anemic. The lad weighs but fifty-seven pounds.

HEIGHT—But three feet six inches tall. Smallest criminal in State.

3,800 TROLLEY MEN WAIT VOTE ON WAGE CUT

With 3,800 men involved, the vote on the new wage proposition of the Boston & Northern and Old Colony trolley systems, assumed large proportions to-day, when it was declared that the result might lead to a strike on both of these big electric lines.

The affected unions—fifteen of them—are awaiting eagerly the result of the vote, which is being counted now at the Hotel Rexford. If the majority of the divisions have voted against accepting the roads' offer of reduced wages, it means that the proposition will be laid before a board of arbitration. But the feeling of the men is such, it was declared to-day, that should such a board decide against them, a strike would be imminent.

All of the lines in the Old Colony division, to the south of Boston, and the Boston & Northern, to the north, are involved. About 15,000 persons, including the families of the 3,800 workers, are concerned.

Lynn Votes Against Cut.

It became known to-day that Lynn had voted against accepting the company's proposition. This is the largest division in the Boston & Northern system. It is said that another strong organization—as yet unnamed—has voted likewise. And no report, as yet, has been made of any specific organization voting for the acceptance of the proposed reduction of the schedule.

The companies propose to reduce beginners' wages one cent an hour and to reduce the maximum wages that may be earned by veterans to 25 cents an hour. The first proposed scale submitted by the companies provided 19 cents an hour at the start and a graduated wage amounting to 24 cents in ten years.

This was refused by the locals, whereupon the companies submitted a scale of from 20 to 25 cents, the latter to prevail at the end of nine years' service.

The Boston & Northern employes demanded a flat scale of 28 cents an hour. The company would not grant this demand.

Four-Year Agreement.

The matter was finally submitted to the Boston & Northern divisions and the five Old Colony divisions of the Amalgamated Union of Street and Electric Railawy Men. They had secret votes on the subject, and these votes were filed with the tellers at the Hotel Rexford to-day.

The unions have an agreement with the railroads which provides that in case of such differences a board will arbitrate. This agreement was made to extend four years, two years of which have elapsed.

IDENTIFIES TWO SICILIANS IN DEATH TRIAL

Witness, Resuming Testimony, Tells of Fight on Atlantic Avenue.

Little progress was made to-day in the trial of the six Sicilian fishermen accused of murder in the second degree in causing the death on Atlantic avenue, Aug. 15, of Peter B. Needham, a flagman in the employ of the Union Freight Company. The defendants are Guiseppe Cardenelli, Pietro Di Pace, Antonio Orlando, Guiseppe Zengari, Rosario Taormino and Cesare Germanico.

Charles A. Colley of Mattapan, who yesterday testified to seeing, on the night of the attack, a crowd of what he called Italians on Atlantic avenue brandishing knives, renewed his testimony to-day, being cross-examined by Attorney Horatio Allen, counsel for Germanico Orlando and Cardenelli.

"One of the men rushed at me and I hit him," said Colley. "I was going to hit him again but he turned and ran and whistled. Then a crowd came out from the Packet pier.

"I do not recognize any of those men as the man whom I hit. I don't know whom I hit. At that time I saw a tussle in the middle of the street. That was the first trouble after the crowd ran out from the pier."

Most of the time of the session to-day was spent in trying to get the witness to identify locations by photographs.

To Attorney James F. Sweeney, counsel for De Pace and Taormino, witness said:

"Later I went back to the Packet pier and I took part in the search of the boats for men who were in the crowd. I identified one man as well as I could in the dark. If I am not mistaken, the man I identified on the north side of the wharf is the third man there (Orlando). In a boat on the other side of the wharf a man was found. He put up a struggle when taken. I think he was the second from the end." (Di Pace.)

TITLE DEPENDS ON THIS CHILD

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The young Duchess de Chaulnes, who was Miss Theodora Shonts of New York, awaits the birth of a child next month, which will determine whether she shall be more closely connected than ever with half the aristocratic families of France or cut off from them entirely, a mere stranger, an outsider.

Should a son come to bless the Duchess, who is living with her mother here, he will, of course, be the heir to his father's ancient title, and he will inherit the Chateau Dampierre and the fortune his mother will get from her father.

But if the posthumous child is a girl the Shonts family will no longer possess a title—it will pass to the family of the Duke de Luynes.

The young Duchess Uzes, the late Duke de Chaulnes' sister, who did so much to bring about his marriage, is devoted to her American sister-in-law and has become at once a nurse and "lady's companion."

MILLIONAIRES IN ODD AFFINITY COURT TANGLE

RICH NEW JERSEY CEMENT MAKER NAMES DOCTOR AND ARTIST IN DIVORCE SUIT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A wife's frank, unconcealed love for two men other than her husband—love which she regarded as altogether natural and in no way blameworthy—formed the theme of a remarkable story sworn to in Newark by Alfred Moyer, a wealthy cement manufacturer of South Orange.

It was a narrative which brought in the Salon of Paris, and the Latin Quarter of that gay city, Mrs. Moyer having gone there with one of the men she loved, as well as on ocean voyages, gay dinners and secret trysts in this country.

It introduced as principal characters—and as co-respondents as well, since Mr. Moyer's suit is for divorce and custody of his fourteen-year-old daughter—two men just as rich, and even better known than the husband.

A Doctor and an Artist.

The first is Dr. William R. Jamison, son of a wealthy family in Mexico. The second is W. Rudolph Kip, an artist, who is famous both here and abroad. Both affairs, apparently, are over with, since Mrs. Moyer is now living in South Orange with her little girl. She is a strikingly handsome, cultured woman, about thirty-six years of age.

Mrs. Moyer was Miss Flora Howard before she married the cement man in this city in 1898. Until 1904 they lived happily at No. 504 West One Hundred and Twelfth street. In that year, while Moyer was West on a business trip, he received a letter from his wife announcing that William R. Jamison, a former fiance, had arrived from Mexico to study medicine, and that she had invited him to call upon her.

Moyer made no comment on this until he returned, several months later. Then his wife's strange manner worried him, and he questioned her about Jamison.

Confesses Love for Another.

"I love him with all my heart and soul," she confessed. "But if you do not wish me to love him, I will try my best to forget him." There had been, the wife admitted, dinners and visits and parties in which Jamison figured.

Three weeks after this confession, according to Moyer's affidavit, his wife told him she could not live without her former fiance. She displayed a letter she had just written to the young doctor, telling him she was going to join him in Mexico, where he had gone, apparently fearing Moyer's vengeance.

Moyer pleaded with his wife to forget Jamison. She left the house, but after staying a couple of weeks with a woman friend returned and promised to give up the medical man. In return for this sacrifice, Moyer agreed to send her on a trip to Europe, and she started after bidding him a cordial farewell.

Sailed with New Affinity.

On this trip, it is alleged, she met W. Rudolph Kip, the artist, and when she returned—Kip crossing on the same steamer—she frankly admitted to her husband that Kip now reigned in her affections. There was a stormy scene following this confession. At the end of it Mrs. Moyer announced that she was done with her husband; she was going back to Paris with Kip, who was wealthy and a famous artist. They sailed together from Boston, the husband alleges. He says his wife's brother, Van Straubenzie Howard, told him he had found them registered at a Boston hotel and saw them engage passage.

While in Paris Mrs. Moyer wrote and begged her husband to let her be divorced. One of her letters introduced in court read in part:

Asked Husband for Divorce.

> I do not feel that I owe you anything; I will live and be free in spite of you. You know the Howard nature. We love independence, and when that is taken away we don't live for anything else. I tell you quite frankly that I shall see the other party as often as I choose.

To her mother-in-law, who wrote begging her to come home, Mrs. Moyer replied:

> I am going into business as an artist model. I see your hands go up in holy horror! Mr. Kip is going to paint me for the Salon, and I shall get as a regular model ten francs, or $2 a day. That will help greatly! If you are shocked at my going to his apartment to pose just kindly remember that this is the Latin Quarter and one does as one pleases without comment. His automobile is at my disposal, and he is so nice I can scarcely believe he is human. Mr. Kip is too rich to make work a necessity.

Mrs. Moyer returned to America early this year and made her home in Orange with her little daughter, although she has told her husband she was not worthy to look at the child. Moyer, in his affidavit, says he could scarcely restrain himself from killing both Jamison and Kip.

WIFE HAS COLONEL JAILED

DECATUR, Ill., Oct. 14.—Colonel William F. Tucker of the United States Army has been arrested here, charged with deserting his wife, a daughter of the late General John A. Logan.

Colonel Tucker agreed to return without requisition papers. He was accompanied by a woman for whom he is alleged to have deserted his wife. A woman nurse who was taking care of him and two men servants completed the party.

Mrs. Tucker attempted to secure her husband's dismissal from the service because of his friendship for Mrs. Myrtle Leone Platt, but failed in this, as he was exonerated of the charges she made against him.

WHISKEY FOR RHEUMATISM

The increased use of whiskey for rheumatsm is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following formula is effective: "To one-half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris Compound and one ounce of Syrup Sarsaparilla Compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and before retiring."

It is surely worth trying by anyone who may be afflicted.

Toris compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago, but it as well as the other ingredients can be had from any good druggist.

WOMEN DEFEND SUN WORSHIP

given $3,000 to the Mazdaznans would it have made any more impression on your memory? A.—No.

Witness then testified that he had never read any Mazdaznan literature and knew nothing about the religion. He denied that Dr. Hanish, as far as he knew, ever blessed beads and gave them to his sister, Mrs. Shaw.

Mr. Maxfield was then asked to localize the reputation that Mrs. Dutton had for telling lies, but said that he could not name anyone who had said at any time that she had that reputation.

During this testimony, Mrs. Shaw who wore the same black costume as yesterday, seemed to lose the calm demeanor that has characterized her actions at the hearings so far. She glanced nervously about the court room, first at the witness, then at her lawyers and from there back to the witness.

Gives Little Heed to Hearing.

Mrs. Hilton, the high priestess of the Mazdaznans, contrary to her actions of yesterday when she watched each witnesses steadfastly, paid no attention to the proceedings at to-day's session. For the first hour she read some of the Mazdaznan literature. Dr. Hilton, her husband, sat beside her for a time, and then moved nearer the witness stand.

Both Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Hilton to-day wore heavy gold lockets on which was stamped the Mazdaznan seal. The seal is peculiar and looks like an Arabic character. Both wore necklaces, Mrs. Shaw's was of coral beads and Mrs. Hilton's of pearls.

The courtroom was filled and every seat was taken long before the hearing opened. Most of the spectators were women and the majority bore the appearance of refinement and culture.

Mr. Maxfield as the cross-examination was concluded declared he had never seen Mrs. Shaw take dew baths. He denied that he said to her, "I never saw anyone act like such a —— fool as you are acting."

SAID MRS. DUTTON WAS UNTRUTHFUL

Mrs. Elizabeth A. George, of Vernon street, Worcester, testified at the Mazdaznan hearing to-day that her husband, Frank, is a nephew of Mrs. Shaw and a half brother of Mrs. Dutton. Mrs. George declared that she lived with Mrs. Shaw in Lowell for over three years. She left there six years ago. She testifid that she was a frequent visitor at Mrs. Shaw's and had a good opportunity to observe her.

Q.—Have you seen a failure of bodily or mental strength in Mrs. Shaw? A.—No.

Q.—What have you observed of her cooking and housework? A.—She is a very fine cook and since joining the Mazdaznans has done her own housework. Before she joined she always had a servant to do that work.

Q.—Did she ever tell you of having visions? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever see an altar in her home? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever hear her say that she left food for the dead? A.—Never.

Called Her "Awful Liar."

Q.—What have you observed in regard to Mrs. Shaw's attitude toward fortune telling when looking at tea grounds? A.—She would always laugh. Her attitude was one of levity.

Q.—Do you know Mrs. Dutton who brings this suit? A.—Yes.

Q.—Has she visited you since this suit was instituted? A.—Yes, she came to my home in Worcester.

Q.—What did she say? A.—She asked my husband and me if we knew that Mrs. Shaw was going to sell her property and leave the country. We told her that we had not heard of it. Mrs. Dutton said that she had been to see Mrs. Shaw, but got no satisfaction.

Q.—Has Mrs. Dutton a reputation for truth and honesty? A.—Well, I've heard many people express an opinion on the question of her truthfulness. I've heard several people who knew her say they couldn't believe anything she said. Friends of mine have written to me saying that Mrs. Dutton was an awful liar. Several of her relatives have told me that you couldn't believe a word she said. I should say that her reputation for truthfulness was bad.

Denies Bribery.

Mrs. Georoge was then cross-examined by Attorney Kitteridge.

Q.—Did you ever hear your husband say that if his aunt, Mrs. Shaw, would give him $2,000 he would testify any way she wanted. A.—I did not.

Q.—When were Mr. and Mrs. Dutton at your house last? A.—They were at our house for supper during the first part of September and spent three hours with us.

Q.—Has your husband seen Mrs. Shaw recently. A.—He saw her at the trial of this case in the court at Lowell.

Q.—Have you ever heard your husband say anything about the sum of $2,000? A.—No.

Q.—Then your husband didn't say he would testify for Mrs. Shaw or do anything for her for that sum? He said nothing of the sort.

Q.—Did he say he was going to see Mrs. Shaw? A.—Yes, he said he was going to see her to hear both sides of the story.

Q.—At no time then did you ever hear your husband say that if Mrs. Shaw would give him a certain sum he would testify for anything she wanted? A.—He did not say anything of that sort.

This concluded the testimony of Mrs. George.

MRS. SHAW SILENT ABOUT DEW BATHS, SAYS HER NEPHEW

Following Mrs. George on the stand at the Mazdaznan trial, the next witness called was Frank Shaw George, a half brother of Mrs Dutton and a nephew of Mrs. Shaw. He corroborated the testimony of his wife as to the mental condition of Mrs. Shaw since the death of her husband and her subsequent taking up of the Mazdaznan faith. He was then asked:

Q.—When did Mr. and Mrs. Dutton call to see you in Worcester? A.—They came during September, shortly after Labor Day and dined with us.

Q.—What did Mrs. Dutton say with regard to Mrs. Shaw's property? A.—She said that Mrs. Shaw had converted all her property into money and was giving it all to the Mazdaznans.

Q.—What did she say in regard to Captain Hitchcock? A.—She said that Captain Hitchcock had told her to come to Lowell just as quickly as God would let her and that he would withhold a certain sum of money for her for forty-eight hours.

To Split Trial Cost.

Q.—Wh[illegible] regard to the hearing of t[illegible] Send for [illegible]? A.—She said th[illegible] enses for the trial unless we won the case. If we won she said it meant $2,800 apiece to us.

Q.—Have you heard your aunt say anything to you in regard to giving you $2,000 for testifying as she wished? A.—No.

Q.—Have you ever seen any altars in your aunt's house? A.—No.

Q.—Have you ever heard Mrs. Shaw say anything about dew baths, communications with her son Maxfield or her husband since their death? A.—No

Q.—Has Mabelle Dutton a reputation for truth and veracity, and if so do you know what the reputation is? A.—Yes.

Q.—What is it? A.—Bad.

The question was objected to by Attorney Kitteridge, but after some argument he was asked again, with the result that the witness declined to answer.

Declines Answers.

Q.—Can you give a specific instance of her telling a lie? A.—I decline to answer.

Q.—What do the people outside of the family say about her? A.—I decline to answer.

Under cross fire, Mr. George denied that Mrs. Shaw agreed to give him any money to testify in her behalf. Asked why he went to Lowell immediately after this suit was started, he replied that he had heard that she was insane and, believing her to be sane, wanted to testify in her behalf, although he had not been asked to do so.

LYNN STRIKE PEACE PLANS ARE HALTED

SHOE WORKERS DEMAND CAUNT'S POSITION BEFORE RETURNING TO FACTORIES.

LYNN, Oct. 14.—Efforts to settle the strike of the 10,000 Lynn shoe workers is temporarily halted.

After an almost all-night session of the executive committee of the strikers it was decided that before the shoe workers should agree to go back to the forty-two factories where manufacturers were willing to treat with their men some definite assurances should be demanded from Joseph Caunt as to his purpose.

At the conference held in Mayor Porter's office Caunt had promised to confer with his employes if the strikers would go back to all of the factories. Now the strike leaders on the eve of the return to forty-two factories want to know just where Joseph Caunt stands.

This was the report made by the executive committee to the mass meeting in Lasters' Hall. At the mass meeting no action was accordingly taken and the matter of signing the agreement with the manufacturers was left temporarily in abeyance until Caunt should make his stand clear.

The executive committee reported that it had come to no final conclusion and the meeting adjourned subject to a call later to-day when it is expected that the matter of returning to work will be finally put to vote.

Messrs. Tracey and Whidden informed the strikers at the mass meeting to-day that a later meeting might be called when Caunt had been heard from and at which time the lasters would be given the opportunity to return to work in the factories where the manufacturers have promised to consider the grievances held against them.

Big Concerns Hold Out.

Sentiment developed at the early mass meeting that the executive committee could not bind the lasters' unions to return to work at the factories where the manufacturers were willing to treat until the strikers themselves had voted on the subject.

It was annouced to-day that ten more manufacturers would likely sign the resolution to treat with their employes and to at once open their factories to them should they vote to return to work. This will make many more than half of the shoe concerns in Lynn ready to resume operations.

But the strike leaders insist that the large concerns come to terms with them. These, besides the Joseph Caunt Company, are the Little, Harney, Hennessey & Thompson and the Creighton factories.

TEAR DOWN OLD CHELSEABRIDGE

Work was started early to-day in tearing down the old Broadway bridge over the Boston & Maine tracks in Chelsea, which was condemned by the railroad officials, and which will be rebuilt.

The Boston & Northern Street railway petition to the Board of Control of Chelsea for a right to lay temporary tracks on Carey avenue from Broadway to Washington avenue last week, was refused, and as a result people living in Revere, Lynn, Saugus and points north, are forced to walk from Broadway to Washington avenue in order to transfer to the cars.

Revere people intend to protest to the Railroad Commissioners in order to have that body grant permission to lay the temporary tracks.

HOLD SEEGAL AND GORDON

Morris Gordon and Morris Seegal, the Chelsea builders and contractors, who were putting up a building in Chelsea when the wall fell, killing eight men, were held yesterday in $4,000 each for the Suffolk Grand Jury on eight charges of manslaughter. They furnished bonds.

The wall fell August 23, on Winnisimmet street. It was one left standing after the big fire and was being used as part of a new building that was being erected.

SUFFRAGETTES SENT TO JAIL; DEFY COURT

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Long before the doors of the Bow Street Police Court were opened to-day the street was filled with a curious throng intent on hearing the examination of the suffragettes and idlers who were arrested during last evening's demonstration before the House of Commons.

The trial of Mrs. Pankhurst, Miss Christabel Pankhurst and Mrs. Drummond was set for October 21, after the women had demanded a jury trial.

Mrs. Pankhurst acted as attorney for the other women and furnished much amusement for the court and spectators by her cross-examination of Police Superintendent Wells, who testified that traffic had been tied up for four hours yesterday afternoon and evening.

A dozen women who took part in the demonstration were given sentences of from one to three months in prison on refusing to furnish bonds for their future good behavior. As many were given thirty to ninety days in jail, without alternative of a fine.

We have put the best of all laxatives into the best possible form. That is all. Cascarets bring their results in a natural and gentle way.

Here is a dainty habit—

To keep the bowels clean.

Do it just the same as you keep your skin clean. Not by severe applications, applied at rare intervals. But by gentle and regular efforts.

It pays immensely.

Many people dread physic.

They think of castor oil, of salts, and cathartics.

They shrink from the after-effects—griping and weakness.

So they postpone the dose until they are costive or bilious. Then they do the cleaning in a heroic way.

That is all wrong.

Cascarets are a gentle laxative. They are just as effective as anything else, and more natural.

And they are pleasant—a candy.

They are made to carry with you. Take one just as soon as you need it. You'll know.

The result is your bowels are always active. You always feel at your best.

Try it. You'll never again go without them.

NEW PARTY MEN UNEARTH HUGE VOTING FRAUDS

Methods Used by Tammany Henchmen Exposed to Election Superintendent.

$5 PROMISED FOR BALLOT

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Campaign Committee of the Independence party has placed at the disposal of State Superintenden of Elections William Leary sworn evidence which reveals that wholesale registration frauds have been perpetrated by Tammany's henchman in a number of down town districts.

The information was in the form of affidavits made by two men who voluntarily told under oath that on October 12 they were corralled with a number of others, provided with several sets of names each and directed where and how to register falsely. The names of the men are withheld from publication in the interests of justice.

Under the pretence of being given work, according to the affidavits, the men who were found susceptible were herded like cattle and driven in groups of eight or ten each to Hesper Club, an organization notorious for its membership of bookmakers and gamblers, who make it their headquarters around election time.

$1 for Each Registration.

The brazenness of Murphy's handy men becomes apparent when they provide each one of their repeaters with a false name, address and other information required at the places of registration, on envelopes bearing the name of the Hesper Club, No. 111 Second avenue.

In the evidence supplied the Superintendent of Elections, a particular group of men were picked up at Mills Hotel, No. 3 Thirty Sixth street and Seventh avenue, taken to the Hesper Club and after being provided with the envelopes bearing their names were informed, it is alleged, that they would be given a chance to make four or five dollars. The agreement was $1 would be paid for each registration. The men who give the evidence under oath registered twice, according to their affidavits, neither time using the correct names, nor addresses.

Repeaters Filled With Liquor.

It appears that the entire scheme had been so cleverly arranged that there was no trouble when the repeaters presented themselves at the several places of registration.

After registering the men were taken by the colonizers to a nearby saloon and provided with drinks, and at the same time told that if they would come around on election day they would get $5 for every vote they cast.

They were told they need fear no trouble, for if any arose on election day the bookmakers and big men would be on hand to "fix" everything all right.

'SALOME' DANCE SHOCKS CENSOR

PITTSBURG, Oct. 14.—Director of Public Safety Edward G. Lang attempted to stop the "Salome Dance" given by Miss Blanche Deyo with the "Joe" Weber Company at the Duquesne Theatre. He declared he was barred from the stage door, after he had made arrangements to secure entrance so he could order down the curtain should he find the dance immoral.

The director says he will not let the dance be presented again in this city, and he threatens to arrest the persons who barred him from the stage.

PHELAN RALLY IN WARD 17

Fully 150 voters of Precinct 2 of Ward 17 last night crowded the rooms of the Critchendon Club on Harrison avenue to listen to Thomas F. Phelan, Independence League nominee for the House of Representatives in the ward. Joseph McCarthy presided.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Phelan said:

"I am familiar with your needs and if elected a member of the Legislature I will endeavor to secure the passage of some legislation that will supply your wants. A vote for myself and the other candidates of the Independence League ticket will be a protest against graft and an invitation to other candidates to keep their hands out of your pockets."

RICH NEW YORKERS' SERVANTS FIGHT FIRE

LAWRENCE, L. I., Oct. 14.—Rich New Yorkers mustered in their servants as fire fighters here to-day, and had them battle with flames which destroyed the lumber plant of John Mills and threatened a number of smaller residences. Among those who have Summer homes here are Mrs. Russell Sage, Franklin C. Lord, Foxhall Keene and his father, James R. Keene. The "millionaires' train" for New York passed within a few yards of the flames at full speed.

GRACE SNELL WILL REWED HUBBY NO. 5

Gets Sixth Divorce Decree, Three of Them from One Man.

DAUGHTER OF MILLIONAIRE

Record of Grace Snell Champion Divorcee of U. S.

Married Frank Nixon Coffin in 1884.

Divorced from Coffin 1894.

Three years later married Coffin again.

Divorced from Coffin for second time in 1898.

Married James C. Walker the same year.

Divorced from Walker in September, 1901.

Six weeks later married Coffin for the third time.

Divorced from Coffin for third time two months afterward.

Immediately married Perkins A. Layman.

Divorced from Layman in 1904, twelve months later.

Married Hugh M. Love in May, 1908.

Divorced from Love in the same year.

To rewed Layman, making her seventh marriage.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Grace Snell-Coffin-Coffin-Walker-Coffin-Layman-Love is to marry Layman again. She announced her engagement and then went to the theatre with her ex- and promised husband.

She cannot marry for several months yet, as her divorce from Love has not been made final, but as soon as she is free she will try it again. She is the champion divorcee of the United States and she evidently intends to set a record that will be hard to beat.

She is the daughter of Amos J. Snell, the Chicago millionaire, whose mysterious murder early in February, 1888, at his beautiful home, No. 425 Washington boulevard, startled the Middle West.

As pretty Grace Snell she eloped when sixteen years old in 1884 with her dancing master, Frank Nixon Coffin. He was once a coachman, but was of good appearance. They lived together ten years (her longest period of wedded bliss), and had three children.

Then she got a divorce. Four years later she met Coffin at the bedside of their dying boy and they were remarried. In three months she got a divorce in Chicago courts. She was living at the Virginia Hotel, Chicago, and promptly married James C. Walker, clerk at the hotel, whom she took on a honeymoon to Europe.

After two years she divorced him. A month later she married Coffin again, but left him four hours after the ceremony, and in a month got a divorce.

When her mother died, the then Mrs. Coffin, etc., inherited her share of an $800,000 estate and came to Los Angeles, where, whil eliving at the Van Nuys Hotel, she met and married Perkins A. Layman, bell boy. In two years she divorced him. May 31, 1906, she married H. M. Love, a local newspaper man, and divorced him last August.

BIG JOHN L. 50 TO-MORROW

John L. Sullivan, the grand old man of the fistic arena, will celebrate his fiftieth birthday to-morrow. The "Big Fellow," though many miles from home, has received scores of telegrams and letters from well-wishers congratulating him on the happy event.

During his careeer Sullivan earned over $2,000,000. He squandered all of this amount, as he himself said, "for a good time." He does not regret one cent that he has spent.

Plans are now on foot among a score of admirers of the "Big Fellow" to tender him a monster testimonial in honor of his birthday. It was the intention of the prime movers in the affair, Messrs. H. H. Guinan, Peter McNally and other well-known sporting men, to have the affair occur to-morrow, but the fact that John L. could not cancel his engagements the project has been deferred to November, when it is proposed to engage Mechanics Building, Huntington avenue, and carry out the celebration.

Woman Leader Pleads Cause of Unionism

MISS JOSEPHINE CASEY.

WOMEN MUST FORM UNIONS SAY LEADERS

That union and organization constitute the only sure means of bettering the conditions of working women is the belief of Miss Anna Bowen and Miss Josephine Casey, the only women delegates to the A. F. of L. convention at Lowell.

"The women workers must organize," insists Miss Bowen. "Not only will their wages be increased, but, what is more important than that, the conditions under which they work will be improved.

"Although all union people are anxious to get as much money as possible, our chief aim is to change present conditions, to shorten the working day and make surroundings more pleasing and congenial.

Urges Co-operation.

"In a mill city like Lowell, for instance, the women wage-earners will never be much better off until they are organized and have unions. At present they work for almost nothing and the hours are very long. Let them once be unionized and everything will be different. One big thing would be the abolishment of the present long day system and the installing of the eight or nine-hour day.

"At present practically all the women workers who are organized are the cigar strippers, laundry workers, hat trimmers and the Boston Down Town Retail Clerks.

"The women constitute the great purchasing power of the country. It is on them collectively and individually that the union workmen must rely. Every sensible woman, rich or poor, should insist that every article she buys be union made. Such co-operation would be one of the biggest possible booms for union labor.

"Men who turn their earnings over to their wives, mothers or sisters seldom know how it is spent, and it is upon the buyers and shoppers that we must depend to see that only union-made goods are bought.

"Union labor products are far and away the best on the market, and women who insist on having them and them only are not only bettering labor and social conditions, but are getting full value for their own money as well."

Teaches Unionism.

Miss Bowen, who represents the Boston cigar strippers, has been attending the conventions for the past seven years. This year she is the only woman delegate of a directly affiliated union in attendance among about 300 men delegates. For three years she has been chairman of the committee on distribution of resolutions.

Miss Josephine Casey, secretary of the Boston Woman's Trade Union League and a member of the Amalgamated Association of railroad employes of Chicago, is in attendance at the convention as a fraternal delegate.

Miss Casey is now devoting her entire time and energy to organizing women workers into unions.

"Fully 50,000 women workers in this State alone would be greatly helped by organization. To make them look at the matter in the right light and to educate them up to the proper understanding of what unionism really is is my sole aim.

"For the past eight days I have been looking over the situation in and around Boston, and I am trying to show the women wage earners the great benefits following on organization.

To Address Railway Men.

"Only the other day I induced twenty-eight laundry workers in Boston to join the union. This insures them a working week of fifty-four hours at the maximum and a minimum wage of $6, which goes as high as $15.

"Men in all occupations have improved their conditions and increased their wages by this union movement, and women can do the same thing. Factory workers, saleswomen and women and girls in every line of work should investigate this movement and derive all the benefits possible.

"We do not ask anything stupendous for our women workers but we are going to strive to have them work under conditions more nearly ideal and to receive wages that will do something more than merely keep body and soul together.

"I intend to get right out among the women and show them how their present position compares with what it would be were they to join the movement of progression. I shall induce the women to join such unions as are already organized and will in the near future organize more unions to broaden and strengthen our plans in every way."

Miss Casey will address the mass-meeting of street railway men at Lowell tonight.

SHEINWALD'S SHOE BARGAINS

With the approach of the Fall months, when cold rains are to be expected, and thousands are considering what shoes to buy, comes the announcement by the Sheinwald Shoe Company, Nos. 40-42 Summer street, that it is selling the retail stock of Luddy & Currier and George Snow and Crockett. Part of it is being sold as low as half price, and some shoes at even 25 cents on the dollar. The stock offers a great variety, and the firm asks that Boston people visit the stores before they go elsewhere.

HALF-MILE TRACK RACES.

Harry L., 2:07¼, is still connecting with the fast events on the half-mile tracks and, though he has been at the game for the past eight years, his condition and speed seems to improve each season. He is in the stable of Eddie McGrath, a young trainer of rare ability, who has met with signal success this year.

FIGHT LYING-IN HOSPITAL AT CAMBRIDGE

Remonstrants Appeal to Aldermen; Doctors Indorse Miss Anna Radford.

Remonstrants against the licensing of a lying-in hospital at Magazine and Erie streets, Cambridge, attended a hearing before the Board of Aldermen in that city last evening. The committee on licenses of the board had granted the petition of Miss Anna Radford of Boston for a permit to conduct such an institution there, but opposition developed in the neighborhood. The opposition had for counsel at the hearing former Senator Frederick W. Dallinger, while former Representative James F. Aylward appeared for the petitioner.

The remonstrants represented property holdings valued at $1,330,000, and included Rev. Richard Wright, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Miss Velma M. Morse, Edward A. Barnard, A. M. Stewart, G. P. Cooley, E. V. Grebenstein, Dr. A. L. Miles, Dr. G. L. True and W. F. Spalding.

Doctors Favor Hospital.

But among those who were in favor of Miss Radford being granted the privilege she seeks were Drs. F. W. Taylor, J. M. Crocker, Joseph H. Cunningham and Fred H. Jouett of Cambridge; H. W. Baker, William P. Bolles, Donald H. Craig, William M. Conant and Henry S. Rowan of Boston; besides Miss Flora E. Welsh of the Dorchester Cottage Hospital.

The hearing was finally adjourned to the next meeting of the board, when those opposing the granting of Miss Radford's petition will be heard. The meeting last night was chiefly devoted to hearing her friends.

Miss Radford is superintendent of the Charlesgate Hospital in Cambridge. She says that the city is badly in need of a maternity institution and that it would not be detrimental to the neighborhood which she has selected for one. To the BOSTON AMERICAN she said:

"The hospital has been started and my nurses and servants are already there. Neighbors are making a tremendous fuss about nothing, for it is only a question whether I have maternity or surgical cases in the hospital.

Advances Property Values.

"In the hospital on Charles River road I have a license for maternity cases, but I have so many surgical patients that I am cramped for room. For that reason I have decided to open the place on Magazine street. Instead of depreciating, property around a hospital advances in valuation. As far as the noise is concerned, it seldom goes beyond the four walls of the building.

"The people in the vicinity of the new hospital are very old-fashioned. One would almost think it were the back woods from the ideas they advance."

BOY, HIT BY TRAIN, LOSES RIGHT LEG

WAKEFIELD, Oct. 14.—Chester L. Nickerson, aged eleven, lost his right leg when struck by an outward-bound Boston & Northern car here. He was crossing the tracks on Main street when the accident occurred. He was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where his condition is pronounced critical.

Tomorrow's Best Bargains

Money-Savers for Thrifty Shoppers Selected by an Expert

IF YOU SHOP EARLY at Meyer Jonasson's tomorrow you will find a small lot of beautiful white china silk waists on sale, at an exceptionally low price. These models were formerly $5.50, but for Thursday's selling will all be closed out at $1.90 each, which is really a remarkable bargain. In the lot are button back and front styles, made with long or short sleeves, deep pin tucked yoke and dainty lace trimmed jabot. This is an opportunity to purchase a very pretty waist at small cost. There are a good range of sizes.

THE JAMES A. HOUSTON CO. WILL offer an extraordinary bargain in black taffeta silk to-morrow, when several pieces of their standard $1.25 taffeta will be placed on sale at 90 cents a yard. This quality silk is of rich jet black, lustrous finish, heavy rustling taffeta and is strong and serviceable. You will find this just the silk for suits and dresses and certainly a most unusual value. The price is positively for one day.

ON THURSDAY THE JORDAN MARSH Co. will close out several dozen pairs of corsets at a great reduction. These are all the discontinued styles of many of the popular makes in long, medium and short hip models that were formerly sold for $1 and $1.50, marked for clearance to 49 cents each. There are some excellent coutil models in most every size to be found, and also several nursing corsets that are rare values.

ON THE FOURTH FLOOR OF THE Boston Department Store you will find some very pretty Japanese portieres on sale for 98 cents that are the regular $1.50 goods.

FILENE'S WILL OFFER their patrons an exceptionally good value in ladies' hosiery on Thursday. Just three hundred pairs of fine black lisle thread stockings that are made of unusually strong fast black yarn, with double soles, heels and toes, may be had at 29 cents or three pairs for 85 cents. All sizes from 8½ to 10.

TO-MORROW THE GILCHRIST CO. will offer you a special bargain in men's flannelette night robes at 42 cents. One lot of robes made of fine quality flannelette cut extra large and full and made in the best manner will be marked this price for one day's selling. All sizes may be had.

IN THE UNDERWEAR DEPARTMENT at Shepard Norwell's just fifteen white knitted underskirts that have always sold for 89 cents each will be marked to 50 cents, as they are slightly soiled. These are close-fitting skirts, and just the thing for the cold days. You will also find about four dozen ladies' drawers in extra large sizes that are the regular 25-cent goods reduced to 15 cents a pair. This lot of drawers are made of good firm cotton, with cluster tucks at bottom, and will be found very reasonable at this low price.

THURSDAY AT CONRAD'S YOU CAN purchase a very good-fitting tailored shirt waist for 65 cents that has just been reduced from $1. This waist is made of neat striped gingham in ox, pink and brown effects, with wide Gibson plait over shoulder, tailored pocket, French back, long sleeves with linked cuff and laundered collar. It is really a very special value at this reduced price. There are just fifty of them in the lot, containing all sizes.

CASTRO'S RICH BROTHER HERE ON WIFE HUNT

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Here, girls, is your chance.

The best catch in Venezuela is in New York and it is vaguely rumored that he is looking about for an American wife. His name is Major Carmelio Castro and he is a brother of President Castro of the Venezuelan republic.

He is twenty-seven years old, tall and handsome, with the cutest little stick-up-in-the-air mustache in the world. His weight is around 160 pounds. He is a graduate of Syracuse University, is a deep student of military matters and has a bright future.

Major Castro arrived on the steamship Zulia from Caracas. Accompanying him is Lieutenant Henrique Carzala, his aide-de-camp.

"What am I here for?" he began when a crowd of interviewers surrounded him, "merely a pleasure trip. I shall spend four weeks in the United States and then go to France for the Winter."

"Have you come to look for an American wife?" he was asked.

"Ah!" thundered the South American warrior, "of that I shall say nothing," and he went clanking away and boarded a cab for the Hotel Empire.

DIES OF RABIES FOUR MONTHS AFTER BITE

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Hydrophobia, resulting from the bite of a dog, four months ago, was the cause of the death yesterday in Netcong, N. J., of T. J. Triece, a locomotive engineer. Up to four days days previous to his death the nature of the disease was not suspected.

DANIEL GILMAN, EDUCATOR AND AUTHOR, DEAD

NORWICH, Ct., Oct. 14.—Dr. Daniel Coit Gilman of Baltimore, formerly president of Johns Hopkins University, died here suddenly. He had gone to his room to prepare for a drive after dinner and was found helpless on the floor by his wife. He arrived here yesterday for a visit with his sisters.

The cause of death was heart disease.

Daniel Coit Gilman, first president of Johns Hopkins University, was born at Norwich, July 6, 1831, the son of William Charles and Eliza Coit Gilman. He was a descendant of Councilor John Gilman, one of the original settlers of Exeter, N. H., who came from England in 1638.

One of Dr. Gilman's hobbies was expositions, and for the last 25 years he attended nearly every one held either in Europe or America.

His ideas on university and collegiate education were presented in articles contributed to the North American Review, the Cyclopedia of Political Science and other publications.

Of recent years his most notable work was the publication of a life of James D. Dana, the geologist. The book is remarkable not only as a life of Dana, but as a study of Yale, with which both Dana and Dr. Gilman were closely associated.

BRENDA YORKE IS FAST.

Brenda Yorke, 2:05¾, the good daughter of Moko, is the fastest pacer now credited to her sire, and Vance Nuckols has worked her in 2:04 this season. If she winters well she will probably be a prime factor in the open pacing classes of 1908.

Are Women Going Backward?

Has Contact with the World Robbed Women of Their Modesty?

By DOROTHY DIX

IN the beginning of this series of articles I referred to a letter I had received from a man who wrote that it used to be a pleasure to him to be reverential and respectful and chivalrous to the women of his mother's time, but that he couldn't bring himself to be even civil to the pert, pushing, audacious, modern girl.

Does this man read aright the character of the woman of to-day?

DOROTHY DIX.

It is a question that every one must seriously consider at some time, for if the open door into the broader opportunities of life has only opened the way to a looser way of living, if the right to stand upon her own feet has planted those feet in the mire, if, in a word, woman has achieved independence only at the price of all the finer things of her nature, then, indeed, is her gain all loss, and her progress has been along the road to destruction, not upward toward the stars.

Of course, it is easy to dogmatize from my correspondent's point of view. You can say that you cannot handle a lily without bruising and marring its purity; that one who fights in the battle must needs grow hard and callous, and that you can no more throw a young girl into the great struggle for daily bread without her becoming tainted with its sordidness and being robbed of some of her delicacy than you could trail a white chiffon ball dress down the street without its becoming bedraggled and stained with mud and mire.

Harem Idea Still Popular.

In a way this is true, and it appeals to many men, because the harem idea is still popular. They would shut women up, if they could, behind stone walls; and their idea of a perfectly womanly woman is a gentle and supine being who stays put wherever some man plants her; who blushes if you speak to her; who knows no more of the world than a baby, and who is so timid that she would never dare to go two blocks alone.

One can understand that such men—and there are Me-Too women who hold to this same theory—find the independent modern girl a perpetual shock to their nerves. To them the free, long, step with which she strides down the street and the very backward fling of her shoulders, are brazenness. Her hustle and push and ability to look out for herself are effrontery. Her competence is a lack of femininity. Her ignoring of sex among her fellow workers is the quintessence of immodesty.

"Look at Mary, working in an office full of men. Look at Julia, actually going on the road to sell goods! Listen at Maud, discussing the points of a new horse with Tom! Think of Hannah, who is only forty-five, with an apartment and latch key of her own, just as if she were a man. Our grandmothers would never have dreamed of doing such things! What are women coming to?" cry these pessimists.

Ignorance Is Not Innocence.

They forget that ignorance is not innocence. They ignore the fact that the danger we are aware of is already more than half averted, and that the girl who is "wise" to her world is a hundred fold safer than the unsophisticated little ingenue who blunders into temptation through sheer, crass unknowingness.

The girl who works and who makes her own way in life, at least knows of the rocks and thorns that lie hidden under the flowers of the primrose path. She knows what men's vows are worth. She has seen the pitiful wrecks of womanhood that come staggering in, bloody, bruised and broken, over the last mile of the course that leads to the hospital and the grave.

The little girl who has been kept safe within the shelter of her home cannot know all this. She sees only the flowers. She hears only the murmuring voice of love beguiling her; and so, if one is to make any comparison between the two she is more apt to yield to a great temptation than the girl who has been out in the world and has eaten of the bitter fruit of the tree of knowledge.

When I hear any one declare that the modern girl is less modest than her grandmother, I feel like pointing them to one incontrovertible truth, before which the greatest detractor of the new woman must stand uncovered. That is, that this is the first generation of women in the whole history of the world which has not married for a support, and which has preferred to go out and do the hard and generally ill-paid work that still falls to woman's lot, rather than give itself to what is—when the rouge is off its face—nothing but legalized and church sanctified prostitution.

For if a woman marries for anything except love, not all the books and bells and priests and wedding breakfasts in the world can make it anything but a selling of herself, and she has no right to draw her skirts away from her sister of the streets.

Change Is Not Loss, but Gain.

Our grandmammas had to marry. There was nothing else for them to do. But surely it may be counted unto their descendants for righteousness that they have the high honor and courage to pound on typewriters, and stand behind counters, and bend over ledgers, and run sewing machines, or eke out a living by writing or acting, rather than to marry just for a home.

Perhaps the modern girl is a bit too cocky. Perhaps she has lost some of the soft feminine graces that the women of the past had. No doubt she would be more attractive if her manners were not quite so free and easy. One cannot deny that she does lack reserve, but these are all outside faults.

Her heart is still in the right place. Her soul is still unsullied. The thin veneer of prudery has been rubbed off by attrition with the world, but the solid grain of her innate modesty, rock-ribbed and impregnable as oak, still lies beneath it.

Her bon camaraderie with the men with whom she works is but a flexible chain armor that she puts on to ward off their light arrows of gallantry that may be aimed at her, and men—real men—know this, if old ladies of either sex do not.

The entrance of women into the working world has not hurt them. They are still all womanly, and all good-womanly.

Does Bunk Win the Race?

Mike, the Ostrich, Gets a Move On; Three Now Run Neck and Neck

MIKE THE OSTRICH, Thoisday and and our old pal Bunk are running neck and neck in the great race. Puzzlers are so far about evenly divided in their opinions, with Thoisday a slight favorite. The race is to be decided on the following data, gleaned from Bunk's diary:

"The race was a short sprint of thirty-two yards—sixteen yards from a post to a tree, and back again. Each of Bunk's leaps measured three feet; Thoisday's stride measured four feet and the Ostrich stepped five feet each time. But Bunk took five leaps to four of Thoisday's strides, and Thoisday made four strides to Mike's three steps."

Now, then, who won the race?

Ingenious "cut-ups" have shown a variety of ways for setting the ostrich in action. Some of them are graceful in pose, others startling contortions, and still others show a "git thar" style of which the accompanying picture is a specimen.

The proposition is to cut out the figure of the bird, then cut it into pieces in any manner you like for the purpose of reconstructing him into a running position. Of course, the "best" answers will show the ostrich speeding, with the least possible amount of cutting and patching.

Again, one hundred prize puzzle books will be distributed among those sending cleverest answers—fifty books for best answers to "Who won the race?" and fifty for putting the bird in action; so you see it is not necessary to answer both puzzles.

Advice on Points of Etiquette and on Social Usages

Mrs. Mary Hutton Pell, who is a member of the Four Hundred and an acknowledged authority on questions of propriety and good form in all social matters, will answer inquiries on these subjects addressed to her in care of this newspaper.

By MARY HUTTON PELL

S. S.—The matter of introductions under such circumstances is for yourself to judge. We should not think it proper to make a social occasion of what is or should be a period of mourning. When sympathy is offered, it is correct to say that you are deeply indebted to your friends for their kind sympathy, and that the expression of it helps you to bear the grief of bereavement.

IGNORANT—The letters you quote have no significance. We have never seen them on the back of an envelope, and are inclined to think that they must be the initials of the sender.

L. E. L.—It would be safer to give the linen shower, as you suggest, as tastes in bric-a-brac vary materially, and what may seem very pretty to the giver might not at all appeal to the recipient. Besides every bride welcomes additions to her stock of linens.

Get as many of your girl friends together for the occasion as you can, whether they are known to the bride or not, as you wish your friends to be hers also. The invitations should read simply and be somewhat as follows:

"Dear Mary—I am getting up a linen shower as a surprise to Gertrude So-and-So, who is to be married on the first of next month, and I know she will appreciate some little contribution from you. I plan to have the shower take place at my house, at a luncheon (or tea) on Wednesday, the 23d, and shall be glad if you will bring or send your contribution to the shower either the afternoon before or the morning of the same day. Sincerely yours,

"ADELE BLANK."

A pretty idea would be to have all the linens, each with the card of the donor attached, done up in a fancy bag with double drawstrings of ribbon, and this strung from the chandelier over the table. At the proper time the hostess pulls the drawstrings and the linens fall in a shower on the table. It would be in good taste for you to give another present likewise to the bride, as those "shower" affairs are usually gotten up by groups of friends, each group arranging a different "shower."

EDNA—It is not customary to wear evening dress to a church wedding when you are not going to the reception afterward. The matter of a wedding gift rests with yourself. If you are intimate with either the bride's or bridegroom's family they may be hurt if you omit it; but if they are merely acquaintances it is not necessary to send a present.

PERPLEXED—Leaving the altar after the ceremony, the procession is headed by the bride and bridegroom; next follows the maid of honor with the best man, and then the bridesmaids, each with an usher for escort. If you have not arranged for ushers at the wedding, then have your brother escort one bridesmaid and some other male member of the family escort the other.

Tret.

INCONSTANCY.

"There's no doubt that women are fickle," said Mr. Growcher.

"I hope you don't mean me," said his wife.

"Yes, I do. Here you are saying this season's hats are perfectly adorable."

"Well, they are."

"And a year or so ago you were talking the same way about hats which you now describe as utter atrocities!"

Sermons in Stones—The Glorious Alhambra

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

TO attempt to describe the Alhambra would be downright foolishness. The Alhambra cannot be described. As well attempt to describe the carnival of glory that takes place when the clouds of the Western heavens are being played with by the vermillion and gold of the sunset.

In the Alhambra is all the splendor of the sunset sky; and while one may behold it and enjoy it, he cannot attempt to speak of it to another.

This marvelous edifice—or combination of edifices, for it is both fortress and palace—was begun by Ibn-l-alimar in 1248, and completed by his grandson, Mohammed III., in 1314.

From the outside the Alhambra is simply a massive red pile, without any attractive features whatever; but once within, the eye rests upon such beauty as no other building on earth can show.

The porticos, pillared halls, cool chambers, gardens, courts, fountains and mosaics combine, in their exquisite lines and coloring, to form an ornamentation that cannot be duplicated anywhere in the realm of art.

A Tangible Vision of Paradise.

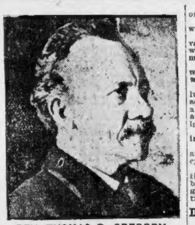
In a word, the Alhambra is a "dream," a vision, as it were, of Paradise; and even in its ruins it woos us like the sound of sweet music, or like the most entrancing of reveries.

Around the famous building gathers the most romantic story of all history—that of the rise, progress and splendor of the Mohammedan civilization.

The Arabs, aroused from their lethargy by the preaching of Mohammed, broke out of their barren Arabia and swept on to victory like an army of demigods. Over Africa and over Asia they marched, and where they marched they conquered.

In 711 they crossed into Europe, and though stopped by Charles Martel at Tours, France, they established themselves in Spain, where they dwelt in splendor for centuries.

Their capital, Cordova, was the finest city at that time to be found on earth. After sunset a man might walk through it in a straight line for ten miles by the light of the public lamps. Seven hundred years after this time there was not so much as one public lamp in all London.



REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

Most Splendid Cities on Earth.

Its streets were solidly paved. In Paris, centuries subsequently, whoever stepped over his threshold on a rainy day stepped up to his ankles in mud.

And other cities of Spain—Granada, Seville, Toledo—were in nearly every sense the rivals of Cordova. Their residences had polished marble balconies, overhanging orange gardens; courts with cascades of water; retiring rooms, vaulted with stained glass, speckled with gold, over which streams of water were made to gush.

The floors and walls were of the most exquisite mosaic. The walls were adorned with arabesques and paintings of agricultural scenes and views of Paradise.

From the ceilings, corniced with fretted gold, great chandeliers hung. The furniture was of sandal and citron wood, inlaid with mother-of-pearl, silver, ivory and gold.

Led All the World in Learning.

And back of this outward splendor was the finest civilization then to be found on the planet.

They had great libraries and schools and museums. Education and taste were well-nigh universal.

They were great chemists—in fact, the originators of modern chemistry.

In medicine and surgery they led the world.

The study of algebra was intently cultivated among them, and it is to them that we own the Arabic numerals, together with many other of our mathematical methods.

They were teaching the true geography while the leading men of Christian Europe were proclaiming the flatness of the earth.

They were the first to apply the pendulum to the measure of time. One of their scholars first determined the height of the atmosphere, and another came very near anticipating Newton in the discovery of the law of universal gravity.

They introduced the mariner's compass into Europe.

They established the cotton manufacture and the process of calico printing from cylinders.

They invented cotton paper; perfected the culture and manufacture of silk, and brought the art of farming to such a degree of excellence as Europe up to that time had never seen.

Driven Out as "Heretics."

But, unfortunately, these Arabs were "heretics," and they had to go.

Philip II., the man who built the Escorial, tried to make "Christians" of them, but failed, and his successor, Philip III., resolved upon their expulsion.

In 1609 the word was given, and more than a million of the most industrious and cultured people in Spain, or in the world, were hunted out like wild beasts.

Many were slain as they approached the coast, others were beaten and plundered, and the majority, in the most wretched plight, sailed for Africa.

During the passage the crews in many of the ships butchered the men and threw the women and children into the sea. Those who escaped this fate landed on the coast of Barbary, where they were attacked by the wandering tribes, and many of them put to the sword or forced into slavery.

Others made their way into the desert to perish by famine.

It is said, on the best authority, that in a single expedition, in which 140,000 were carried to Africa, more than 100,000 suffered death in the most frightful forms.

It is no wonder that Spain, the once proud and powerful nation, is now but a memory—the trembling ghost of its former self.

And there they stand—those ruins of the glorious Alhambra—an eternal token of the truth that not even the most absolute monarchs can chain the progress of the human mind!

Advice to the Lovelorn—By Beatrice Fairfax

MOTHER QUITE RIGHT.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl twenty years of age and would like to ask you for advice. I kept steady company with a young man for the last two years and a half. We think a great deal of each other. He was obliged to go away for three months on business. Do you think I am doing wrong to go out almost every night with other young men until 12 and 1 o'clock, and has my mother a right to call the young men down for keping me out, and demand to know where I was so late? Can't I go and come when I like without asking my mother or letting her know where I go? I am of age and I work during the day. I think I can do as I please. What do you think of my case?

ANXIOUS.

I THINK that your mother is absolutely in the right. She would be a poor sort of mother if she did not care when you stayed out so late. You are too young to be out with men until such a late hour. Of course, if you are not engaged to the young man you speak of, you are at liberty to go out with other men; but if you really cared for him, you would not go out with other men. As long as you live in your mother's house, she has a perfect right to rebuke you or the young men when you stay out so late.

A LONG WAIT.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl nineteen years old and have been going with a young man one year my senior since January. We have agreed to wait five years before we marry and, although I am not engaged to him, I would like to have you advise me whether this is too long a time to wait. I should not like to give him up, as he is a gentleman in every respect and wants to get started in business before he gets married. Now, Miss Fairfax, do you think I should tell my parents about this arrangement? although I think they suspect something of this kind, and like the young man very much, and are not everse to my going with him.

E. W.

MOST certainly your should tell your parents. Five years is a long wait, but you are both young, and if you are sure of your love for each other the time will soon pass. Do not tell other people, but be sure and tell your parents.

A WASTE OF TIME.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of eighteen years, and have been going with a gentleman for the last three years and he has never asked be to marry him. I dearly love him. Do you think I ought to waste the best part of my life with him?

A. B.

I THINK that after going with a girl for three years a man ought to know his own mind. Of course, you are very young, but if the man is of a marriageable age I think you would be foolish to waste your time in waiting for him to make up his mind.

STILL THERE ARE OTHERS.

Maud—She is a woman who has suffered a good deal for her belief.

Ethel—Dear me! What is her belief?

Maud—She believes that she can wear a No. 3 shoe on No. 6 feet.—Tit-Bits.

If the Spinster-Lady Had Her Own Way

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"IF I had my way——" said the Spinster-Lady, and paused expressively.

"Well, go on," rose in eager chorus. "If you had your way, what then?"

"I would have every girl taught to earn her own living."

"But, my dear," said her best friend from her place behind the tea table, "there are a great many girls who have no need to earn their own living."

"That makes no difference. They should be taught how to do so in case of necessity. You never can tell when reverses may come, and the girl who is an heiress to-day may be poor to-morrow."

"Yes," said a thoughtful looking brown-eyed girl, "that's true. Look at Kitty J——, for instance. Who would have thought that Kitty would ever be anything but an heiress? And yet she is absolutely penniless and does not know how to do a single thing to help herself. It really is dreadful to think how helpless she is."

Most Girls Would Be Helpless.

The Spinster-Lady looked around the group of pretty, well-dressed girls who were gathered about her tea table, and then said very earnestly:

"I wonder how many of you, my girls, could earn your living if thrown on your own resources to-morrow. What could you do, Lily?" turning to a merry-faced girl at her right.

"Nothing but make wine jelly and fudge," was the rueful answer."

"And you, Edith?"

"Well, at a pinch I could teach music; but it would be pretty poor music, I am afraid."

"There is no call nowadays for poor teaching of any kind; my dear; so I am afraid you would not make much of a living. What could you do, Emma?"

"Oh, I dabble at a good many things. I sing a little, paint a little, do fair embroidery and am pretty fair at chafing dish cookery. That is the sum total of my accomplishments."

"Well, you might with much care turn your embroidery and cooking to some use, but not unless you improved in both lines.

"How about you, Madge?" turning to a fresh-faced little maiden who had taken no part in the conversation.

Just One Well Equipped.

"I? Oh, well, I have no accomplishments, but I can write on the typewriter like mad. I learned how to do it so as to help father with his articles last Winter when his secretary was ill. I got interested in it and kept it up until father says I really am an expert."

"Good little girl! You are the only one who could put bread and butter in her mouth if every girl in the room awoke to find herself penniless to-morrow."

"But, dear Spinster-Lady, we can't all be typewriters. What would you have us do?"

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"I would have every schoolgirl taught some practical branch so that she could support herself, should the occasion arise. The late Queen Victoria of England had every one of her daughters educated as though she expected to earn her own living. Every one of the young princesses understood practical cooking, sewing, housekeeping, bookkeeping, etc.

"If you study music, study it thoroughly so as to be able to impart your knowledge to others.

"There is nothing more pitifully helpless than the woman who is suddenly thrown upon the world and forced to support herself. None of you may ever be in that position, but in case it should happen I urge you to be prepared. Learn how to be independent."

On Telling the Truth

Anyway, It Pays to Have a Reputation for Veracity

By KENNETT HARRIS.

MULREADY sucked in his withered cheeks grotesquely, in a vain effort to make his pipe draw. Then he withdrew its charge of tobacco, which he handed to the young man with a green sweater for safe keeping, while he dug at the dottle with his knife.

The young man watched these operations rather impatiently, but he said nothing until Mulready had the obstruction cleared and the tobacco burning freely. Then he repeated his question.

"Did nut I tell you that I'd quit givin' advice in sooch matthers, Jamesy?" asked the old man.

"Tain't advice," said the young man with the green sweater. "I was just askin' your erpinyun of a matter in a gen'ral way."

"Is that the way av ut thin?" said Mulready, with a quizzical twinkle in his eye. "Listen. Ut depinds ahltogether on what ut is. Ut's a safe rule t'rough life, wid min as well as wid wimmen, niver to tell a lie when the truth does betther, or aven as well.

With a Girl—It Depends.

"You just stick by that an' ye'll come out ahl right, so ye will. How far a lad may go from facts an' into fancies whin he's conversin' wid a gyurl is nut a settled point by anny matther of manes. Ut depinds, as I tell ye.

"Ut's harrd to get on widout sthrayin' more or liss from what Father Duffy calls the sthrick, sthraight line o' v'racity; but ye must kape in mind that wanst a gyurl or a woman suspecks a man is lyin' she'll bide her time till she thrips him up an' thin ye'll be put to ut to make her belave annything ye say—unliss she wants to belave ut.

"But coortin'—— Well, ut's been thried both ways.

"D'ye min' Edward Fitzjurid Daly? He was the biggest liar iver come out o' Clare, an' that's not sayin' a little. Ut hurt um to tell the truth, so ut did. Not a taste av harm in the four parts of him, but he'd lie in spite av ahl.

"He had a wicked, rovin' eye, had Edward Fitzjurid, an' a light fut an' a light heart an' a way wid the gyurls. We worrked on the same siction, him an' me, an' there was wan time he come near to takin' me own gyurl away from me wid the coaxin' tongue av him. If he had I'd niver have married her, an' who knows but I might have had more hair on me hid than I have this day? But that's nayther here nor there. I married the wan I thought I wanted an' he fell in love wid Rosie Moynihan.

He Had the Name of a Liar.

"She was a jool av a gyurl, Rosie. She was nut bewchus, but she was clane an' trim an' fresh as ye'd wish to lay eyes on an' good as goold an' betther. Ould Jerry Moynihan was boss for tin years on the G. B. & N. G. an' he'd saved his money an' bein' he was a widdy man there wasn't nobody but Rosie to get it afther him, not to spake av $500 that her gran'father had lift her in thrust—whativer that is. Annyhow, Edward Fitzjurid fell in love wid her an' the poor bye had ut bad, too, so he did."

The young man with the green sweater heaved a pensive sigh.

"Yis," said Mulready, with a wry smile, "he had ut bad, but she did nut let him put the comether over her. She was good an' she knew what repyertation Edward Fitzjurid had.

"'The man I take will tell me the truth,' she sis. 'He'll have the name av a truthful man an' not av a liar. Me father sis that ye're the worst liar that iver dared to draw breath or pay on the G. B.,' she siz.

"'Somebody's been lyin' to yer father,' siz Edward Fitzjurid. 'I've alwis had the name o' bein' too honest in the way o' plain spakin' for me own good. 'Tis what has held me back,' he siz. 'Anyhow, an' whether or no, the kind av a man ye want me to be I'll be, mark ye that, from now henceforward an' forivermore. I'm a-tellin' ye straight.'

"'We'll see how ye come on,' sis Rosie 'I don't know that ut will make me like y anny betther, but ye can thry, if u plases ye.'

"That was enough for Edward Fitzjurid You niver seen a quicker case av rayfoorm in ahl yer days. Divil a lie passed his lip from that out till iverybody was talkin about ut.

"Wan fine mornin' he did nut come down to worrk an' the nixt day whin he came ould Moynihan asked him what the rayson was.

"'Sure I'll not lie to ye,' siz Edward Fitzjurid. 'I might tell ye I was sick, but I was nut. I was dhrunk, disgraceful dhrunk. Ut was foolish an' you can fire me av ye like, but that's the truth av ut, so ut is.'

"Ould Jerry tould Rosie. 'Ye see what kind av a blayguard ye've got follyin afther ye,' he sez.

"Rosie gave her hid a toss. 'He's no liar anyhow,' she says an' flipped out o' the room.

"The nixt time Rosie seen Edward Fitzjurid she siz to him, 'What was the rayson that ye got dhrunk an' gave folk the handle agin ye that ye did?'

"'Rosie,' siz Edward Fitzjurid, 'do ye mind the crass looks an' the harrd words that ye give me the avenin' before, whil I was here?'

"Rosie meditated on that a while an then a bit av a smile showed. 'Well, ut's glad I am that ye did nut lie about the matther,' she siz.

"''Twas becus o' you that I did nut,' says Edward Fitzjurid; ''Twas becus o' you that I sthopped me prevaricatin' ways, Rosie. Sure ye've cured me entirely, acushla.'

"Rosie twisted her apern. 'What makes ye care for me, I'm wondherin?' she siz. ''Tis niver me beauty, becus I have none of it.'

No Use of Going to Extremes.

"'Thrue for ye,' sis Edward Fitzjurid, 'though ut's the delight o' me eyes ye are.'

"'Me mout' is too big entirely,' sis Rosie, 'an' I've no nose to spake av in a way.'

"'I'll niver deny ut,' sis Edward Fitzjurid, 'but I wud nut have thim different.'

"'Me eyes is like our pig's an' me hair is red as a carrot, an' me hands is two sizes too large. An' they tell me I'm too fat,' sis Rosie.

"'Ye cannut help ut, darlin',' sis Edward Fitzjurid. 'Ye're the way God made ye, an' wid ut ahl ut's the happy man I'll be if you'll give me wan o' thim big hands an' yer big heart wid ut.'

"'Me sarvice to ye, Mr. Daly,' sis Rosie, turnin' her back on him, 'but a gyurl wid ahl o' thim defictions wud be too much av a thrile to anny man. Sure there's some gintlemin that has nut yer fine taste in the matther o' luks an' faytures, but I'll not be throublin' mesilf to mintion thim. Good day to ye, Edward Fitzjurid, an' betther manners.'

"And wid that she sailed out wid her little puggy nose in the air."

Mulready knocked the ashes from his pipe with an air of finality.

"Then he lost her by handin' it to her straight, did he?" asked the young man with the green sweater, his anxiety in his voice.

"He did nut lose her," replied Mulready, dryly. "He wint to her the nixt day an' confessed that he was lyin' to her whin he said what he did, fearin' she'd think his rale sintiments was blarney. An' he made her believe ut. 'Twas easy, so ut was."

An Extinct Species.

SENATOR BEVERIDGE, in the course of an eloquent after-dinner speech in Boston, said of child labor:

"When we consider the indifference with which so many of our great men look upon the child labor evil, we can't help wondering if these men are so very great after all."

Senator Beveridge paused and smiled.

"An orator," he said, "was addressing an assemblage of the people. He recounted the people's wrongs. Then he passionately cried:

"'Where are America's great men? Why don't they take up the cudgel in our defense? In the face of our manifold wrongs, why do they remain cold, immovable, silent?'

"'Because they're all cast in bronze!' shouted a cynic in the rear."

B. & M. NOW MERGED WITH NEW HAVEN

Mellen Ticket for Directors Goes Through at Lawrence Meeting.

WOMANS' PROTEST IN VAIN

LAWRENCE, Oct. 14.—The grip that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has on the Boston & Maine was shown at the annual meeting of the stockholders here to-day. Out of 302,926 shares outstanding 228,093 (all represented) were cast for the Mellen ticket. The Mellen ticket was rushed through, and the Boston & Maine Railroad is now merged with the New Haven for all practical purposes.

There was only one feeble note of protest against the New Haven programme. This was when a stockholder—Mrs. Brown, who said she was a member of the Twentieth Century Club of Boston,—offered a resolution compelling the management to inform the stockholders ten days before the annual meeting as to the make-upp of the machine ticket for Board of Directors.

Her motion was ruled out of order. She protested that the ticket offered at the meeting was made up in secret and that stockholders had had no chance to consider it before the time arrived to vote. It is significant that until the actual business of electing directors was taken up, the stockholders did not know whose names were on the slate.

This is the new Board of Directors:

Lucius Tuttle, Richard Olney, A. W. Sulloway, S. C. Lawrence, Joseph H. White, William Whitney, Moses Williams, Edward B. Ricker (new), Fred E. Richards (new), James M. Prendergast (new), Edwin F. Greene (new), Frederick C. Dumaine (new), Frank T. Brown (new), Charles F. Linsley (new), Samuel Hemingway (new), John L. Billard (new).

Mellen's Friends in Control.

Samuel Hemingway of New Haven, one of the new directors, is a close personal and business friend of President Mellen of the New Haven Railroad. He is president of the Second National Bank of New Haven.

Charles L. Linsley of New Haven, another of the new directors, is likewise a good business and personal associate of Mr. Mellen. He is one of the New Haven directorate and is associated with the firm of Bardley & Hubbard Manufacturing Company of Meriden, Ct.

Frank T. Brown, another of the new directors of the Boston & Maine, is a New Haven attorney and has long been identified with the financial interests of the Connecticut city. He knows Mellen well.

Of the other directors Frederic C. Dumaine is treasurer of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, vice-president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company and director of the American Trust Company; Edwin F. Green is treasurer of the Pacific Mills, director of the National Shawmut Bank, the City Trust Company and various manufacturing companies; James M. Prendergast is a cotton merchant and director of the Boston Elevated, Commonwealth and New England Trust Companies and Second National Bank of Boston; Frederic E. Richards is vice-president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of Portland, Me.; Edward B. Ricker is president of the Poland Springs Company.

Largest Meeting in Years.

This was the largest meeting of the stockholders of the Boston & Maine Railroad in years, and yet the Mellen control was plainly dominant from beginning to end.

After the election of the new board of directors the stockholders voted to rescind the vote of October 9, 1907, authorizing an issue of its negotiable bonds to an amount not exceeding $12,000,000 for the funding of the floating debt, for the payment of borrowed money, and for the addition to the equipment of company and the improvement of the road.

DROPS DEAD AS HE HURRIES FOR TRAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—James H. Judson, fifty years old, senior member of the firm of E. M. Judson & Sons, metal polishers of No. 334 West Fifty-ninth street, dropped dead to-day in the subway station at Jackson avenue, Bronx. He had hurried for the train, and the exertion was fatal.

PROCTER & GAMBLE P&G NAPHTHA SOAP

Ordinary Naphtha Soap is Yellow

Because of the rosin in it. P. & G. Naphtha Soap is white—no rosin in it.

Rosin is cheap.

That is why most manufacturers of naphtha soap use it.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is white.

There is no rosin in it; nothing but high grade soap and refined kerosene.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap does its work quickly, easily and thoroughly.

It does far better work with cold (or lukewarm) water than ordinary laundry soaps do, with boiling water.

Use it and get rid of practically all the discomfort of wash day—the boiling of clothes; the hard rubbing up and down the wash board; the necessity of keeping a hot fire going all day long. 21

NO MONEY; HAINS TRIAL POSTPONED

District-Attorney Appeals Unsuccessfully for Extra Funds.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—After a vigorous but ineffectual effort to persuade the board of aldermen to pass a bill appropriating $20,000 for use in the administration of his office, District Attorney Ira G. Darrin of Queens County declared to-day that he would close every court in his county at once, the funds at his disposal having all been expended and no more being forthcoming.

Mr. Darrin appeared personally to urge upon the aldermen the straits in which his office found itself. The criminal trial of the Hains brothers, held in Queens County jail for the killing of William E. Annis at the Bayside Yacht Club last August, he pointed out, would require the retention of insanity experts to refute the testimony when the defence would put in, in an attempt to establish the irresponsibility of at least one of the defendants. Unless a special appropriation were passed the district attorney would find himself unable to successfully combat the insanity defence, he declared.

Mr. Darrin said he had received personal assurance from a number of the members of the board that he would be voted an additional $20,000 at to-day's session, and the failure of the appropriation to pass left him in a very embarrassing situation.

"I have no other alternative," said he, "than to close all the courts in Queens County and I will do so at once. It would be absolutely futile to try and conduct the office of public prosecutor without money, and I shall not try."

Asked what effect the failure of the board to provide him with funds would have on the Hains trial, Mr. Darrin replied that it would halt its prosecution. The Hains cases come up before the Grand Jury to-morrow.

POLICEMAN 34 YEARS, RETIRES

Police Commissioner Stephen O'Meara announced last night the retirement of Sergeant Jeremiah B. Sullivan of police headquarters and Patrolman Charles A. Badger of Division 11 and the resignation of Patrolman Thomas J. Crehan of Division 1.

Sergeant Sullivan has been on the police force for thirty-four years. He will receive half-pay. Sullivan was incapacitated for street work in April, 1886, when he was attacked by a man with an axe.

YANKEE GUNNERS FOR CASTRO'S ARMY

CARACAS, Venezuela, Oct. 8, via Willemstad, Curacao, Oct. 14.—General Carmelo Castro, brother of the President of the Republic, has left here unexpectedly for New York on the steamer Zulia. It is rumored that his mission is to obtain artillery men in the United States to man the coast defences of Venezuela.

WOLFBORO HAS $45,000 FIRE

WOLFBORO, N. H., Oct. 14.—A loss of nearly $45,000 was caused last night by the burning of the Goodwin Block, situated in the heart of the business section of the town. Four stores were burned out. Joseph W. Robbins, drug store, suffered a loss of $10,000; Frank P. Morrill, restaurant, $3,000; Sylvester A. Edgerly, boot and shoe store, $10,000; and Charles H. Johnson, dry goods, $6,000.

LEAGUE RALLY FRIDAY NIGHT IN WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Oct. 14.—Great interest is being manifested in the rally of the Independence League, which is to be held in Horticultural Hall Friday night.

William N. Osgood, the candidate for Governor, who is well known in this city, is spoken of very highly by the members of his profession and by those who have knowledge of the great work he has done for many years for the rights of the people.

The way that he has fought the money sharks in behalf of their victims and the strong and forceful manner in which he has, for years, advocated measures in behalf of the working man and working women have won the respect of many people in this city.

All the molders hereabouts know and admire "Bob" McCartney, the league candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, who has been a member of the Molders' Union for fifteen years and for eight years was at the head of the New England conference board. They will turn out in force to give him a rousing greeting.

The fact that ex-Councilman Jeremiah W. Mara is to preside at the rally is evidence in itself that a vigorous campaign will be fought in this city for both the national and State tickets of the Independence party.

SOUVENIRS AT THE COLISEUM

To-day begins the souvenir days at the Boston Food Fair in Park Square Coliseum. When the doors opened at 10 a. m. souvenir copies of the full score of Sousa's latest composition, "The Fairest of the Fair," were ready, free for the first 500 women buying admission tickets. There was a rush at the opening of the doors to be among the lucky 500, as all coming after that number will have to pay the regular price for the music.

This Sousa march is dedicated to the Boston Food Fair, and is a lively composition. It has been applauded every time Sousa's Band has played it in the daily concerts, and is considered one of the best things from the versatile mind of the "March King."

To-night will be Harvard night at the food fair. Harvard collegians will be present. They will be welcomed by the sweetest smiles of the fair demonstrators and also by Harvard music played by Sousa's Band in their honor.

The concert overture to-night will be Suppe's "Jolly Students." Other appropriate selections will include the Moorish dances from "Azara," by John Knowles Paine, late professor of music at Harvard; Bigelow's march, "Our Director," "Fair Harvard" and Morse's famous composition, "Up the Street."

HOW BEAR GOT TO WOBURN IS DEEP MYSTERY

Nobody Knows Where Beast, Killed by Dogcatcher, Came From.

SLAYER TOOK HIM FOR DOG

J. Michael Callahan, official dog catcher for the city of Woburn, fought and killed at night in Hudson's field, off the Arlington road, a young wild bear of the black variety who had a penchant for hugging humans and picked the canine chaser for an embrace. The bear was four feet in height and weighed 150 pounds.

Where the bear came from is a mystery. After the shock of excitement caused by a fight to the death within the limits of a highly civilized and somewhat popular Boston suburb had dwindled, citizens asked each other: "Where did that bear come from?"

To date it has been a query unanswered. He is not a fugitive from the Norumbega or any other local zoo, no traveling menagerie has been in this vicinity of late, and nobody around the scene of the beast's adventures has reported as lost, strayed or stolen any ursine specimen kept as a pet.

Didn't Know It Was a Bear.

Mr. Callahan, in the course of his official career, has met and battled with all kinds of dogs. He has no fear even of those afflicted by rabies. He will noose 'em with a fearlessness that occasions admiration or take them into custody with a firm, bare, determined hand. It is not questioning his courage at all to say that he did not tackle the young bear with any knowledge of its genus or disposition. He thought he was going after a dog—which is as common and uneventful in his experience as anything could be. So he took no gun along, no long-bladed, keen-edged hunting knife, not even an axe. Even the club with which he finally slew the bear came into his hand by the fortunate accident of a random quest for a weapon in the darkness.

"I was told," said Mr. Callahan, "that there was a big dog cuttin' up in the field, and so Sunday I went after him. I took a piece of rope along to tie him up and lead him to the pound. I saw something on all fours cavorting around, and still thought I had a purp ahead of me. But when I got close I was somewhat jarred. The creature arose on its aftermost legs and began to spar at me as if he thought he was in a ten-acre ring and was Bat Nelson or some other glove champion. 'My, my!' I said to myself. 'You are a strange kind of a dog.' But having come after him I proposed to linger till he was mine. He was inclined to mix it up with me. That was his style of fighting. I got too close, and he landed on my shoulder with a right wallop that might have been a knockout punch if it had reached my jaw. But I side-stepped, ducked or did something that kept me from getting the belt on the jaw, although I was knocked down as it was. The bear would have been disqualified by a referee. He did not give me time to take the count, but tried to pounce on me while I was lying on the ground. I reckon I was back on my feet and out of his reach in a second.

Killed Him with Club.

"Mr. Bear tried to hug me, and I declined with agility. If he had gotten me pressed close I certainly would have been in a bad fix. We did some tall footwork for a few minutes. He was trying to reach me, and I was trying to find something which would make him lie down and stop disturbing the peace. I finally stumbled over the branch of a tree in my backward manouevres, and taking it up with both hands found I sure had a sizable club. When Mr. Bear, growling and swiping at me with both paws, got within range I handed him a lick on the head which put him out of business. He was knocked out, and he never had a chance to come to. He was a bad bear, and I walloped him on the head until he was as dead as any bear ever seen in Woburn. He had given me a good fight all right. Whenever I tried to rope him he would chuck the line off his head like a juggler."

The bear's hide is in fine condition.

BLEW UP OWN TAILOR SHOP

Residents of Roxbury, near Upham's Corner, were startled by a muffled explosion in the tailor shop of Harry Spineshowski about 8 o'clock to-day, followed by the hasty exit of Spineshowski and a sheet of flame.

He had just entered the shop and struck a match to light the gas stove on which he heats his irons. A leak in the pipe had filled the room with gas during the night, and when the match flamed up an explosion followed.

Spineshowski escaped serious injury. The damage is estimated at $500.

KID M'COY SAYS HE WILL WIN IN A PUNCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Kid McCoy, once the cleverest light heavyweight in the world, will re-enter the ring in New York on Friday night. He will have to stack age and a long period of inactivity against the vigor of unspent youth, but he declares that he will come back to his old form and clean up the ring of to-day. The fight fans of New York are doing a heap of speculating and a great crowd will be on hand to witness his promised reincarnation. The general opinion is that he will have to hook over his famous corkscrew punch in the first round or fall a victim to the call of time.

McCoy will meet Jim Stewart, a youngster who has been making great strides in the ring. Stewart will have thirty pounds or more on McCoy. He will be in perfect condition, ready for a battle of any duration. Stewart is not without skill, and he has the speed of a lightweight, although, of course, he is a novice when compared with McCoy in the matter of ring experience. McCoy knows every art of the fighting game, and has long been considered the craftiest man who ever entered a ring.

McCoy will have nearly six months' hard work behind him when he enters the ring. He will weigh in the neighborhood of 170 pounds. Recently he has been working at Marlboro, on the Hudson, under the direction of Jack O'Brien. He says he is in condition to travel six rounds at the fastest pace any man can set, and he is confident of victory.

"I am going back to the game because I can't keep out of it," said McCoy. "It may be the glory. I don't know just what it is, but I just had to fight again. I looked all the big men over, and I am satisfied I am their master. I am still good enough to dispose of any of them."

CY YOUNG HAS RIVAL IN KEENAN

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—Old Cy Young of the Boston Americans, who is looked upon as the one ancient landmark in baseball, has a rival in Joe Keenan, shortstop of the Toronto team. Since Keenan's name has appeared in the Toronto line-up there has been much speculation as to who the new man is. When Larry Schlafly, the Toronto manager, was asked as to the identity of the new shortstop, he replied:

"Oh, that's Kid Keenan. We picked him up in the International League."

In applying "Kid" to Keenan, Schlafly made no mistake, as Keenan hops around the diamond like a two-year-old, which was a surprising fact when it is known that Keenan has been playing ball for more than thirty years. Keenan hails from Western New York and is forty-eight years old. He started playing on independent teams when about eighteen years old.

NAP LAJOIE PLAYED IN EVERY GAME

Nap Lajoie has the distinction of being the only player in the American League to take part in every game this season, participating in 157 contests. This is a proud record for the Cleveland manager, for it proves that he has learned to curb his temper, and such a thing as a spiked finger or a sprained ankle is no hindrance to his ability to perform in fast company. Just think of it, 157 games and being credited with 582 times at bat. This does not figure the number of times he was passed, as well as the sacrifice hits. As he made thirty of the latter, it can be readily figured out that Nap was to the plate 600 times this season.

This is a wonderful record, and one that should make the Nap manager happy, even though this is his second year that he has failed to be in the .300 list. Standing sixteenth in the list, he wound up the season with an average of .289, a slump of two points since the publication of the last averages. He is third in the number of base hits for the season, having 168, and scored 77 runs.

HUGH M'GRATH RESIGNS.

Hugh C. McGrath, who for several years has been superintendent of the Charlesbank gymnasium, will to-morrow sever his connection with that institution. He resigns in order that he might devote all his time to the study of law.

KID SULLY IS EASY MARK FOR MATTY

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Matty Baldwin-Kid Sullivan bout at the Colin A. C. of Brooklyn didn't set the building afire, but Baldwin won handily just the same. Sullivan, the most sluggist fighter in the ring, where speed is concerned was a booby in the hands of the fast little Boston boy and Baldwin wasn't in the best of shade.

Matty met Sully once before and the bout went fifteen rounds. He probably felt that a long run for a car was training enough. He looked very plentiful about the rim of his green tights. But Sullivan, who looks like Tom Sharkey's little brother was there ready to do or die, and his principal occupation was dying. He succumbed rambunctiously enough, but he never was in the same school of boxing with the Beaneater. Baldwin all but jabbed the head from his broad shoulders.

By actual tally Mr. Sullivan of Wash Dee See hit Mr. Baldwin from Bosting town just six times. No more, 'pon my word. One of the hits cut Baldwin on the lip, though, and spoiled the usual calm aspect of the Bostonian's round little fighting face. For five rounds it was pump, pump steadily and with never a flaw of Baldwin's left hand for Sullivan's Sharkey-looking countenance. They went true as a die and the first three had Sullivan's proboscis in a bad way. These smacks on the snout had poor old Sully looking as wild as a barber shop cat that had been set upon by the prize fat customer. And that's some reckless.

Sullivan tried hard all the time, but he couldn't get started. He started all right enough at the sounding of every gong, but Baldwin was always ahead of him and steeple jacking all over him.

JOHN MADDEN'S FAST FILLY

John Madden, owner of Hamburg Belle, 2:04¾, and other classy trotters, gave the two-year-old trotter, Nancy McKerron, a record of 2:25¾ at Lexington. Nancy McKerron was sired by John A. McKerron, 2:04½, while her dam is the old champion, Nancy Hanks, 2:04, which Madden purchased at the Fasig-Tipton sale at New York last Fall.

H. K. Devereux purchased Nancy McKerron at the same sale, paying a long price for her, and a few months later was offered a profit on her by Madden, and he sold his interest in her. Lexington horsemen who have seen this filly work say that she is one of the classiest young trotters they have seen in that part of the country in a long while, and that is making a very strong statement.

NOTES OF WORLD'S SERIES.

The Cubs scored the first shutout of the series against the Tigers yesterday. Miner Brown, in red shirt sleeves, humiliated Jennings's band, 3 to 0.

Half of the four seasons opposed the Cubs' digitless twirler—Summers being relieved by Winters after eight innings of heavy going. The Cubs took kindly to the mid-year's namesake's offering, and Winters didn't get away unscathed in the one inning he officiated.

The Teddy Bears got all their runs after two men had been retired. In the third they got a brace with two down on two transportation tickets and singles by Steinfeldt and Hofman. In the ninth, a single, steal of second and Cobb's muff of a fly ball netted the Windy City outfit another run.

It ought to be easy sailing for the Cubs this afternoon. Donovan, it is reported, has caught cold in his pitching arm and he will not be able to go on the mound for three or four days. It will be too late then.

It is just possible that the Giant players will get more money from benefits and testimonials tendered them by the appreciating New York fans than will the Chicago or Detroit players from the world series. Each player of the winning team will realize but $1,000 apiece for their end. President John T. Brush, of the Giants, has given his players about $25,000 since the season closed last week.

Not only has Charles Webb Murphy, of the Cubs, aroused the ire of the Chicago fans by his hoggish tactics by supplying the speculators with tickets, but he has somewhat inspired the enmity of Harry Clay Pulliam, executive-in-chief of the National League. Pulliam bought sixty dollars' worth of box seats for Sunday's and Monday's games. When his friends had been comfortably seated on Sunday ushers came up with the special national commission tickets for the same boxes and Pulliam's friends were ousted from the boxes. Pulliam wisely cancelled his tickets for Monday and had his sixty dollars refunded. Harry is still out sixty bucks for Sunday's tickets.

Brown gave the Jungaleers but four hits and these were made by O'Leary and Crawford, each getting a pair of safeties. The Cubs got to Summers for nine hits in eight innings and scored two runs during the youngster's stay in the box.

Summers alone is responsible for his defeat. With two men out of the way he gave Schulte and Chance each a base on balls. Steinfeldt, who has been making a disgraceful showing with the stick lately, surprised himself and the Cub rooters by planting a safety in left on which Schulte scored. Hofman followed this up with a single past Coughlin and his general scored the second run of the game.

Cobb's inability to hit safely at the critical moment cost the Tigers a run in the first. With Crawford perched on third, Cobb's best was a grounder to Tinker, who threw the Southerner out at Chance's corner. Cobb, for the first time during the series, was a strike-out victim.

The Tigers had another good chance to score in the fourth inning, when they had two on the paths with no one down. It is possible that Jennings's misjudgment spoiled the possible rally. Instead of ordering Cobb, the next man up, to hit it out and take a chance on a double play, as the Detroits were two runs behind at the time, Hughey told Cobb to try the suicide plash, and as a result the man on second was forced out at third, and the chance was gone.

ALONDRA DEFEATS FAST FIELD OF TROTTERS ON THE SPEEDWAY

By ED. COGSWELL.

It takes more than one swallow to make a Summer was proved at the matinee of the Metropolitan Driving Club at Charles River Speedway, as while the trotters in the fast event failed to finish their schedule to the dot, yet so many of the other races were so exciting that extreme interest was maintained till the final heat had been concluded and announced.

In the fast race were entered Dreamwold Proem, Chase, Sid Axworthy and The Aloma. This on paper seemed all the critic could desire in seeing something doing from the drop of the hat. However, Dreamwold Proem was scratched through Arnold Lawson being in New York; The Aloma was kept in the stable on account of not having fully recovered from injuring his hip bone a week ago, thus leaving Sid Axworthy and Chase to fight it out.

A Hair-Raising Heat.

The opening heat was a hair-raiser the whole route, but Chase pulled away a little at the finish, winning in the sensational time of 1:00¾. In the next trip Chase weakened fifty yards from the finish, leaving Sid Axworthy to land handily in 1:04½.

John Trout, who was driving Chase, then went into the club stable and came out in a few minutes behind another horse. This nettled Harry Wood, owner of Sid Axworthy, who, after kicking to the judges, had W. J. Furbush start alone in a walkover heat, getting the race.

Regarding the terminal of the event President C. H. Belleden, owner of Chase, sand to John W. Dorey, chairman of the race committee, when the latter informed him the racing had to be conducted strictly to the rules, that as in the past there had been so much dallying in getting through with the afternoon racing, he was more than pleased it was himself and horse which was penalized instead of some other members of the club. In the future he trusted that in applying the rules no favor would be given him, for as president of the club he desired no allowance for that reason.

Real Race of the Card.

It was Alondra, Tom Phair, Lord Quex and Earl King that made the horse race of the day. In the end the first-named carried off the laurels, but it took him four severe heats to head the summary. W. D. Hunt, owner and driver of Alondra, received all kinds of compliments in his hard-earned victory. In each heat the finishes were very close. Tom Phair took the first trip in 1:06. Then Lord Quex rattled off a heat in 1:03. Up to this point Alondra had been 2-4 in the positions, but the two following journeys down the speedway he barely nosed out in 1:05 and 1:04½. While Earl Kind did not connect with a heat, yet in three of the four he was knocking right at the door.

In the fast pacing class W. J. McDonald won with Claymos over My Star in 1:03¼, 1:02, and in the latter heat My Star was only a neck back. Another first for Mr. McDonald was with Talpa in 1:04¼, 1:04, from Olive S., Red Bird and J. E. C. This mare is right good and will stand a lot of beating.

Old-Fashioned Trotter Won.

Fred Garmon nailed another blue ribbon with Martha G., after losing the second heat to Maud Blend, the fastest heat in 1:07¾. The little old-fashioned trotter is coming along so fast there is no telling where she may land. William LaCroix came up from Lynn with Sally March, having his trainer, George Moore, drive. In the two final heats she was close onto Martha G., being second each trip. Her performance gained for her many admirers.

B. W. Gove paraded a trotter of real merit in Billy Wilkes, who surprised all by winning in 1:04½ from Rose Autograph, Cassandra and Billy Ross. C. S. Spencer, too, got away with a trick with his Harry Bingen in 1:06½, Gracie Baron taking the initial heat in 1:06¼.

Of the pacers Dean Swift, owned and driven by J. D. Thompson, won in 1:04¼, defeating Edith J., Lanter and Little Sidney, while the two-year-old filly Miss Eva Wilkes won in 1:14½ from a smart field. The results of the remaining events follow:

Black Joe (J. W. Dorant), in 1:08; The Baron (Jesse Eddy), in 1:08; Go See (L. A. Beane) in 1:06½; Commodore Forbes (H. B. Ralston) in 1:10; Toppan Boy (F. W. Dorr), in 1:10½, and Barronette (H. B. Ralston), in 1:16.

KEENE WILL DRIVE CAR IN CUP RACE

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The list of entries for the Vanderbilt cup race was officially announced by the commission yesterday, including tdwenty cars—seven foreign machines and thirteen American racers. The list showed only half of the drivers said to have been chosen, although the race is now less than a fortnight off.

The list is principally interesting for the announcement that Foxhall P. Keene will drive his own Mercedes car in the contest, while it is said that Harry Payne Whitney may also handle the Brasier car. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has named Luttgen to drive his Mercedes, while on Robert Graves's car will be Stricker, who drove the Protos in the Grand Prix.

The complete list of competitors named is as follows:

1. Robert Graves's Mercedes (Stricker).
2. W. W. Burke's Mora (no driver named).
3. Chadwick Auto Company's Chadwick (Haupt).
4. Cordner & Flinn's Acme (Patschke).
5. Knox Automobile Company's Knox (Bourque).
6. Knox Automobile Company's Knox (Basle).
7. E. R. Thomas Motor Company's Thomas (Salzman).
8. W. K. Vanderbilt's Mercedes (Luttgen).
9. Foxhall Keene's Mercedes (Keene).
10. Harry Payne Whitney's Brasier (no driver named).
11. Matheson Auto Company's Matheson (Demegeot).
12. Matheson Auto Company's Matheson (Ryall).
13. Clifford V. Brokaw's Isotta (Lytle).
14. Paul Lacroix's Renault (Strang).
15. Hotchkiss Import Company's Hotchkiss (no driver named).
16. E. R. Thomas Motor Company's Thomas (no driver named).
17. E. R. Thomas Motor Company's Thomas (no driver named).
18. Locomobile Company's Locomobile (Robertson).
19. Locomobile Company's Locomobile (no driver named).
20. Thomas Williams's B. L. M. (Williams).

HART WILL OUTWEIGH TWIN IN ARMORY BOUT

The reception accorded to Jack (Twin) Sullivan at the Armory Club next Tuesday night is sure to be a royal one.

The big Twin is one of the most popular boxers ever developed in New England. He has always been the smiling, affable gentleman boxer, and his social attainments have been the means of introducing him into society that ordinarily shies at boxers.

Then again, the local public knows that there is always something doing when Twin enters the ring. He is a big, strong fellow, absolutely devoid of fear, and confident as can be of victory when he faces the pride of Kentucky, Marvin Hart.

The latter will be a great deal heavier than the Cambridge boxer, but Jack has faced just as formidable propositions before and come off with flying colors.

There is great interest in the match, as both are sterling favorites with the local followers of the ring, who realize that some grand sparring will be witnessed when the men face one another.

In the opening bout Luther Manuel and Young Johnson will meet in a colored championship event, while Eddie Carr of South Boston and Billy Connatty of Cambridge will face one another in the semi-final.

ALES

YANKEE BIKERS ARE BEATEN

Nat Butler and Bobby Walthour, the American bicycle riders, have ridden a number of races since their arrival in Paris. At the Buffalo Velodrome, two days after he arrived from America, Butler rode a 100-mile race against Walthour, Darragon and Contenet, both the latter having ridden in this country.

Butler was handicapped, being too highly geared, while he was very unlucky in the matter of punctures. For these reasons he was unable to finish better than third. Before ten kilometers had been covered Daragon had lapped his rivals, and he finally won in 2:5:24 3-5, beating Walthour by thirty-five laps and Butler by fifty-five. Contenet did not finish.

FOOD FOR FANS.

The Baseball Magazine for November is full of readable matter that will appeal strongly to the football as well as the baseball fan. In the baseball field Niemyer of New York has an article on the "Giants," George L. Moreland writes on "The Need of a Better System of Scoring;" Mabel Hite, the wife of "Mike" Donlin of the New Yorks, tells of her experiences in baseball; Porter Emerson Browne has a corking football story, "A Grand Stand Play," and Umpires Emslie and Johnstone of the National League staff, tell of their connection with the game. In the football field Walter Camp, W. J. Monilaw, E. B. Cochems, Dudley Dean and David L. Fultz and John A. Gammons are contributors on timely topics.

LOST MILL JOB FOR ATTENDING JEW FESTIVAL

Declaring that he was discharged from the Readville Cotton Mills because he stayed away from his work to attend services on the Day of Atonement, a Jewish holiday, Max Siegel of No. 67 Poplar street, Boston, a prominent Hebrew, has brought the matter to the attention of Rabbi Charles Fleischer, who will make an effort to have him reinstated.

According to Mr. Siegel he asked the foreman if he could get off Monday to attend church services, as it was a big Jewish holiday. He was told that if he stayed away he need not appear any more. When he returned on Tuesday he was handed his pay check and ordered out of the mill.

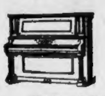
PIANOS AND ORGANS

MONEY TALKS



Ours Is Yelling

We Will Pay Spot Cash for Pianos Anywhere
TRUST PIANOS PREFERRED
And after we buy them we will sell them for less than we pay for them.

"Never say die" is what gave America its Independence—Same with us—We're in this piano game to win, and are willing to throw all profit overboard to keep our good ship Independence afloat. The piano trust cannot down us and cannot get us to enter any agreements to keep the prices of pianos up. We have many beautiful pianos coming in every day, and we are sacrificing them. Remember—any piano you wish. You can buy from us at a big saving. Don't doubt, come up and investigate.

$5 Down—$1 a Week The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON, OCTOBER 14, 1908

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 14, 1908

All Contributions—Small Ones Especially—Most Welcome

We receive, with a check for $25, the following letter:

> Dear Sir—I enclose a small personal contribution to the Independence League campaign fund, with the feeling that he who gives promptly gives doubly.
>
> Yours very sincerely,
>
> W. F. A.

Mr. E. R. Brown, of No. 546 Essex street, Lynn, has called at the office of this newspaper and left $2 as a contribution to the Independence League campaign fund.

The money in both cases is accepted with thanks and will be forwarded to Mr. Junius T. Auerbach, treasurer of the Independence party in Massachusetts. There are probably a good many men that would like to contribute to the campaign fund of such candidates as Hisgen and Osgood, many of whom cannot afford to give as much as W. F. A. or Mr. Brown has given. Any contribution, AND ESPECIALLY THE SMALLEST, will be gladly received and acknowledged by the Boston American. Contribtue what you can, one cent or a hundred cents, and send it addressed to the Cashier of the Boston American. It is the intention that counts in a campaign contribution, not the size of the contribution. We should much rather receive a hundred thousand contributions of one cent each than one contribution of a hundred thousand dollars.

If you can do so, show your friendship for the good candidates by contributing a small amount, but don't contribute anything unless you can well and thoroughly afford it in these hard times.

Work and talk for INDEPENDENCE, for honesty, for Hisgen, for Osgood, for McCartney and the other COMPETENT, HONEST MEN NAMED BY THE INDEPENDENCE PARTY. That is the important thing.

Yes, Mr. Bryan Has a Wonderful Voice

But This Country Needs Something More Than a VOICE

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Mr. Bryan made thirty-one speeches the other day, and he said afterward, "I felt just as fresh when I made the last one as when I made the first one."

Doubtless. Mr. Bryan's is indeed a remarkable voice.

But there are other remarkable voices. In one big central railroad station there is a man who makes all the year round ten speeches to Mr. Bryan's one, telling where the trains go. He has a bigger voice than Mr. Bryan's. He talks even more distinctly, AND HE STICKS TO THE SAME STORY. If you get on a train in accordance with his instructions, you arrive at your destination. Our big railroad stations have many admirable voices, and a great majority of them unquestionably belong to honest, worthy, good men.

These men with the fine voices, however, are selected TO CALL OUT THE TRAINS; they are not selected to run the railroad. For a big voice does not necessarily mean a railroad manager.

If you were a stockholder in a railroad you would not ask to have the train announcer made president, would you?

Well, you are a stockholder in the United States. Don't you think you need something better than a big voice at the head of the United States?

Mr. Bryan has been making a great many speeches for a good many years. He has talked on many sides of many subjects.

He has been for silver and against silver.

He has been for government ownership and against government ownership.

He felt that he couldn't live without the income tax and the initiative and referendum, AND THEN FORGOT ALL ABOUT THEM.

He invented a bank guaranty system—or rather borrowed it from somebody else—and now he thinks the nation will be saved absolutely if you compel the honest bankers to pay up the debts of the banking thieves.

On many subjects, and on both sides of many subjects, Mr. Bryan has talked very eloquently. His voice IS wonderful.

But, readers, if you put Mr. Bryan in the White House you will regret it. You will find that a great, natural-born talker isn't necessarily by any means a good worker.

With Mr. Bryan in the White House, you would have for at least four years very hard times. Those out of work WOULD STAY OUT OF WORK. Many of those that have work would lose it. In the depression and disorganization workmen would suffer. Trusts would take advantage of the situation to reduce wages, savings bank accounts would shrink.

Readers, you know that we sincerely believe these statements, or we should not make them. It is for you to decide, each man for himself.

In the opinion of the Boston American, which you know to be your friend and TO MEAN WELL, AT LEAST, the election of Mr. Bryan would be a serious menace to the country. And, believing this, we are bound to repeat it constantly from now until Election Day as emphatically as we can.

This country wants an earnest DOER, a man like Hisgen, who successfully fought the Standard Oil.

The country doesn't need a talker. A few plain words to such men as Rockefeller and the others, WITH CONVICTION BEHIND THEM, would be worth thirty-one thousand speeches on thirty-one thousand different subjects.

Rights of Mothers-in-Law

Tact and Consideration Are Due Them, No Matter How Difficult They May Be

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE selfishness, the prejudice, the narrowness of the mind of the average mother-in-law are topics ofttimes discussd in this column.

Too much cannot be said in the hope of awakening the minds of mothers to a knowledge of what real mother love means: the love which includes the life choice of the son or daughter, and which enables the mother from her heart to say, "I not only love you, my child, but I love those you love and those you find necessary to your happiness."

But there is another side to the question: the side for the son-in-law, and more particularly the daughter-in-law, to consider. We expect more wisdom, more reason and good judgment, more self-control and a better example from an older woman or man than we expect from the young; but we have a right to expect some attempt at fair dealing and justice and good will from the young who are of marriageable age.

Meeting Her Son's Fiancee

The fiancee of a very young man visited her future mother-in-law. This mother-in-law-elect had difficulty in realizing the fact that her son was grown up, so suddenly had he sailed into manhood's port from the sea of boydom.

The son was born while the mother was still in her 'teens; and naturally the two had been close comrades. She had shared every pleasure, hope and ambition of her son, and she had been his guide, counsellor and best friend.

Now when the fiancee visited this mother, who was a widow, the situation became a most delicate one, necessitating tact, refinement ,consideration and unselfishness on the part of both women to render it endurable.

The mother's heart was troubled, naturally, regarding the choice of so young a man; but she was large-hearted and tender and loving, and anxious to see the best in her visitor.

And what was the attitude of this visitor? Did she, too, show a delicate sense of the tact needed in her position?

Alas, no! She only showed a proud delight in her power over this mother's son; a pleasure in having him completely at her beck and call; a love of dominating him, and having him obey her whims and moods, and of proving herself to be the ruling influence of his life.

Sure to Make a Mother Unhappy

There was absolute and uncompromising ownership in every look an word and gesture of the girl.

However big and broad and sweet a mother's heart might be, such a situation would be painful to her. She could not help suffering at the thought of giving up her son to such a woman.

And she could not help realizing that such a nature would not, in the long run, give a man happiness in the trying and varied ordeals which marriage presents to the most perfectly mated souls.

Many an unhappy daughter-in-law who suffers from the dislike and enmity of her husband's mother might trace that feeling to her own thoughtlessness, silly or tactless conduct in the early association with her husband's family.

The love of power is a human failing; but it is more frequently exhibited by petty natures, incapable of any strength which would lead to real rulership, than by the born leaders.

A foolish girl of small mentality likes to show her power to control her lover, and does not stop to consider how fleeting such control must be, and how its exhibition must antagonize others who have been the guides and teachers of this man before her advent on the scene of action.

One Way to Prove Her Love Real

The woman who really, deeply, genuinely loves a man, and desires to be his companion, mate and helpmeet through life, will exhibit tact, taste and good judgment toward his family. Particularly will she endeavor to conciliate his mother, by showing an appreciation of that mother's position, and in no way endeavoring to usurp it.

She will make the mother understand that she considers a wife has her distinct place in a man's life; a place which in no sense encroaches upon the mother's position.

The female dragon type of mother-in-law will not be won over by such treatment, but the half-way human mother will be made wholly tractable by a judicious and persistently tactful and considerate daughter-in-law.

Upon the attitude of mother-in-law and daughter-in-law depends so much happiness or misery for whole families and for generations, frequently, that it behooves every girl contemplating marriage to study the subject with care and prayer, and to seek its solution in her own heart.

Its only solution is found in one word—Love.
